Goes To Governor

Compromise Bill Approved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An $11.6 million compromise bill which the House appropriations chairman called "an honorable compromise" was approved today by the Missouri House, 134-1, and by the Senate, 25-1.

The bill now goes to the Governor.

Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, was the only Senate dissenter, saying he objected "to the precedents being set" for calling a special session to act on supplemental appropriations.

The action cleared the way for lawmakers to go home, ending a special legislative session caled Sept. 6.

Rep. Robert E. Young, RCarthage, put the lone red light on the House tally board.

Since the new bill contains many non-emergency items, he said, "it is darned poor business to ignore needed maintenance work on this capitol, one of the most beautiful of the 50 states."

He also objected to a bill providing scholarships for students in private colleges and the fact that money requests from three colleges were met while the other five state colleges and universities were "ignored."

The compromise bill — at $11.6 million only slightly higher than the $10.8 million Senate measure stubbornly rejected by the House — was hammered out Wednesday night in a closed meeting of a 10-member conference committee.

The bill was approved by unanimous vote after two days of often bitter negotiations. Tuesday night, the House and Senate members on the committee were widely split and they didn't get together for another meeting until 2 p.m. Wednesday — upon the urging of leaders of both houses, who sat in on the meetings.

At about 8 p.m., as Senate Majority Leader William J. Cason, D-Clinton, put it, the bill was "hatched."

"We had some serious disagreement on priorities," said the House Appropriations Committee chairman, Rep. E. J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland.

"We probably met the needs as best as they can be met," he said. "I think it's an honorable compromise."

The Senate appropriations chairman, Sen. Donald Manford, D-Kansas City, said he still was undecided whether to vote for the bill.

A big concession for Manford was lifting $797,000 in court salary increases from the general fund, or tax money.

The bill now is worded so that if the court judicial fund is depleted, the money will come from the general fund.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes asked for $23.5 million when he called the special session Sept. 6. The House trimmed only $2 million after causing concern by tabling the bill in the Appropriations Committee.

As it stands, $6.8 million will come from the general fund, which has a $23 million reserve. Federal money and other funds will provide $4.8 million.

The major restoration Wednesday night was $1.2 million for increasing the state aid to junior colleges from $320 to $400 per student. Manford opposed the restoration because the junior colleges have $1.8 million in undistributed funds.

A $178,000 expenditure for putting mental patients in licensed nursing homes was included. A controversial $40,000 expenditure for a St. Louis center for the developmentally disabled was also returned to the bill.

Among the hotly debated items left out were $40,000 for increasing the pay of 46 liquor control agents and $1 million to provide up to $900 in scholarships for needy college students in private or public colleges.

However, $105,000 to gear up the program was left in with the directive that one grant be offered immediately to test the constitutionality of the bill.

The largest single cut, $7 million for increasing state payments to nursing homes, drew little argument Wednesday night, Manford said.

There was sentiment for waiting until January to provide money to pay back a federal grant which now is providing the payments.

Another controversial item, $300,000 for an environmental trace substances center at the University of Missouri, was put back in the bill. Senators complained that a building for temporary use would be built with $150,000.

Out came a $1 million item to renovate the crumbling west end of the capitol, $67,000 for the Human Rights Commission, nearly $400,000 for improvements at Trail of Tears and Big Lake state parks, and $53,000 for allowing state prison inmates to leave to visit ill relatives or take college or vocational classes.

Highway Patrol salary increases amounting to $1.1 million, $638,000 for the public defender program and $2 million for the University of Missouri remained in.

FAA May Influence Patrol Site Decision

JEFFERSON CITY — Whether or not Sikeston is the site of the new highway patrol Troop E headquarters may depend on a ruling from the Federal Aviation Administration, Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

Hockaday said the patrol is asking for permission to build a radio tower on what it considers the best site, located on high ground in the southwest section of Sikeston. The tower would be two miles from the end of the runway at the airport and could pose a hazard to air traffic.

Hockaday refused to say that the headquarters would be relocated to Sikeston if permission is given to build the tower. He added that he didn't know how long it would take for the FAA to make its decision, but said he hoped it wouldn't be too long.

City Manager Jim Huff said today the city would probably offer to pay part of the cost of moving the tower if the headquarters is built in Sikeston.

The choice of sites for the new headquarters has narrowed down to Sikeston and Poplar Bluff, with Sikeston rumored to be the first choice.

The patrol headquarters is now located in Poplar Bluff.

Swift Pleads Innocent

CHARLESTON — John Swift of Wyatt waived arraignment this morning before Magistrate T. J. Brown Jr. and pleaded innocent to a charge of second degree murder.

A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 19 for Swift, accused of the July 27 shooting of his son, John Swift Jr. Swift reportedly shot the 17-year-old boy with a .22- caliber revolver after the youth struck him in the head with an ax. Bond was set at $2,500.

A felony charge of forgery was reduced to a misdemeanor of writing an insufficient funds check for Dale Davidson of East Prairie. Davidson pleaded guilty to the reduced charge and received a suspended one- year jail sentence. He was placed on one - year probation on condition he obey the law, repay a $50 check written to Raymond Cornwall and pay court costs.

William Faire of East Prairie pleaded not guilty to malicious destruction of personal property. The case was continued to Oct. 5. He is accused of hitting a car belonging to Milton and Edna Gordon with a bottle on Sept. 21. He was released on $500 bond.

Willie George Robinson and Clyde Edward Cleave, both of Charleston, requested an attorney be appointed to represent them on felony charges of stealing. They are accused of stealing five batteries from Simmons Equipment Co. on Sept. 20. Bond for each was set at $1,000.

Phelps Campaigns Here

Every governor should have a lieutenant governor of the same party standing behind him, says William C. Phelps.

Phelps, a state representative from Kansas City seeking the office of lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket was campaigning in Sikeston Wednesday. He considers himself Christopher (Kit) Bond's running mate, but, even if Bond is elected, Phelps may not be.

In Missouri, the governor and lieutenant governor are not elected together, but separately. Phelps favors changing to the national system where candidates for the top two offices win or lose together. Most states have now gone to this method, including Illinois, which currently has a Reublican governor and Democratic lieutenant governor, but will change with the next election.

Animosity between the two men and the unworkability of the arrangement led to the change in the Illinois Constitution.

"It doesn't make sense to have conflict between the governor and the lieutenant governor, especially in Missouri where the lieutenant governor takes over as soon as the governor leaves the state," Phelps said.

Social Security Checks To Rise

Scott Countians will begin receiving a 20 per cent benefit increase in Social Security checks in October, Jim Colson, assistant manager of the Social Security office in Cape Girardeau said today.

The extra income, which will amount to more than $1 million a year is a result of a bill approved by Congress earlier this year and signed into law by President Nixon on July 1.

In 1973, the first full calendar year during which the higher benefits will be payable, the 6,487 Social Security beneficiaries in Scott County will receive a total of $6,070,000 in benefits, compared to the $5,060,000 that would have been paid if the 20 percent increase had not been enacted.

The average retired worker in Missouri who is now receiving a benefit of $129 a month will get about $156 per month, the average retired couple receiving $224 a month will get about $271 and the disabled worker receiving $144 per month will get $173.

While the majority of Social Security beneficiaries in Missouri are older people, an estimated 25,000 are under the age of 60. The under 60 group includes disabled workers and their dependents, widowed mothers and children and the children of retired workers.

Colson stated that everyone on the Social Security list will receive the 20 per cent increase and that it is not necessary for beneficiaries to take any action because the increase will come to them automatically.

AN OFF-DUTY SIKESTON policeman was injured Wednesday in an accident that occurred at 3:30 p.m. on Highway 114 one mile east of Morehouse in the only area traffic accident reported by the highway patrol.

Sgt. Charles Humphries, 45, of Sikeston received a fractured back when he lost control of his car while lighting a cigarette and struck a bridge railing. He was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston and is listed in satisfactory condition. Gary Irvin of Morehouse, left, and Morehouse Chief of Police Leonard M. POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If you work hard and persistently today, you can have faith that tomorrow will take care of itself.

OLYMPIC POLITICS SPAWNED TERROR

The horror of Munich has its roots in the subversion of the Olympic ideal first stated by Baron Pierre de Coubertin that the important thing was "taking part." The Baron brought the Games back to the world in 1896 after Emperor Theodosius of Rome had formally abolished them as a pagan ritual 500 years earlier.

The savage killing of 11 Israelis is the denouement, the tragic pyre engulfing Olympic aims.

The idea of "taking part" has been steadily eroded by political pressures extremely manifested in 1968 when a threatened Negro boycott before the Games in Mexico City ultimately produced the raised fist Black Power salute of Tommie Smith and John Carlos.

Political hassles earlier marred the serenity of Olympic competition, but for the first time an incident obviously meant as a propaganda device overshadowed the athletic arena. People came away from Mexico City talking not about the distance runners from Kenya or Debbie Meyer's triple victory in swimming or even Bob Beamon's incredible long jump of 29 feet 2½ inches. They talked about the black gloves on the hands of Smith and Carlos, their heads bowed in defiance of the American flag as they stood on the victory stand.

Way back in 1908, there had been strained British - U.S. relations during the Olympic Games. The Americans felt snubbed because their flag wasn't flying over the stadium in London. In opening day ceremonies, they refused to dip the American flag before King Edward VII. But the marathon victory of Johnny Hayes, a ribbon clerk at Bloomingdale's, obscured the bitterness.

In 1936, the spectre of antisemitism and Adolf Hitler's outlay of $30 million turned the Olympics into a Nazi showcase. But Jesse Owens came home from Berlin an everlasting national hero.

In 1956, a bloody water polo match between Russia and Hungary dominated the news for a day (45 Hungarian athletes later defected to the West). But that was also the year Harold Connolly, an American hammer thrower, met Olga Fikotova, a Czech discus thrower, and then married her.

In 1964, Indonesia and North Korea sullenly withdrew their teams from Tokyo over political disputes. But Don Schollander, with golden hair and a golden smile, brought home four swimming gold medals.

The import of the Smith - Carlos incident in 1968 was its observance by 500 million people on television and the divisiveness it created, even among athletes within the Olympic compound, after the Americans were dismissed from the squad and sent home.

It had to give extremists an idea of the world impact that any act associated with the Olympic Games could provide in these times of pervasive communications.

The murder of the Israelis exposes the conscience of world people the way the assassinations of Martin Luther King and the Kennedys horrified a nation. As individuals, the martyred Israelis are almost nameless, but their assassination was the invasion of a sanctuary, a peaceful convocation of world peoples, and so provokes various doubts about the meaning of the Olympics.

Paul Gallico, a dropout from sports writing, once deplored " ... the dangerous illusion that public competition on the athletic field engenders good sportsmanship. It's the finest stewpot for cooking up international hates between us."

Announcing the continuation of the Games, old Avery Brundage noted the "political blackmail" which permitted the exclusion of Rhodesia. It wasn't much different than the ousting of South Africa in '68 to allay the threat of boycott. Both countries, of course, have racist policies which are abhorrent to black nations, and others.

But the main point is that the Olympics were not designed for nations. Their spirit has been traduced. If the Games are to continue, in Montreal in 1976, nationalism has to be eliminated as much as possible. The athletes themselves are for the most part apolitical. The world can glory in the poetry and beauty of action they provide, as it did in the first week of the 1972 competition, if other pressures are reduced.

They can be reduced by not playing national anthems, by eliminating unofficial team scores, by eliminating even team games. In short, by not producing an atmosphere in which a bunch of fanatics would want to go in and wantonly cause the death of a group of men on the basis of nationality.

During Olympic competitions, athletes do not have to live together by nations.

TAKING THE BALL

Sixty years ago, there came into being an organized body of consumer protectors known as Better Business Bureaus. There are 140 local Bureaus in existence throughout the United States at the present time. These local Better Business Bureaus, for nearly six decades, have worked in behalf of consumers. They have monitored and exposed bad practices in advertising, as well as in business, and sought to expose chicanery in the marketplace. They were, in fact, the original consumer protectors.

Today, the work of the local Better Business Bureaus has been vastly strengthened by the formation of the Council of Better Business Bureaus. The Council was established at the beginning of 1971 as an assistance agency. According to the Council's president, H. Bruce Palmer, "Its goals are to become an effective national self-regulating force for business by demonstrating a sincere and visible concern for the consumer." Its activities are guided by a 14- point program. It includes such things as making help available to all consumers who seek it; the setting up of Consumer Councils; the encouragement of consumer participation in Better Business Bureau activities; the expansion and diversification of consumer education techniques; the monitoring of national advertising, etc.

The Council of Better Business Bureaus, through the facilities of a new pilot data bank at Denver, Colorado, will serve a National Consumer Information Center that will pool all the accumulated facts of all the Bureaus. In short, it is setting out to show that through self- regulation business can do more for consumers in the policing of the marketplace, than can a costly multi- layered federal bureaucracy. Those who have taken the lead in expanding the work of the Better Business Bureaus recognize that consumers have legitimate complaints. But, they believe business can best respond to those complaints through the self- discipline imposed by an organization such as the Council of Better Business Bureaus. The alternative to self- discipline, they feel, is a growth of government intervention and a gradual erosion of the free market, competitive business system.

The goal of the new Council is well described by Mr. Palmer in a few words. He says, "We seek to develop the most intelligent customer in the world. We seek to give him not only more facts, but also more chance for participation by using the facts."

OUT OF ITS FIELD

The Missouri Public Service Commission may soon start studying utility advertising, its chairman says, and indications are it will do so with the intention of trying to have it discontinued.

The Commission is out of its field and getting into something that actually is legally none of its concern.

Advertising, whether its on radio, television or in our newspaper, is an integral and necessary part of modern business. So far as its adding measurably to the costs of utilities, the total done in a year by any utility company wouldn't make a smidgin of difference in rates — it would be too small to even notice.

We get very little utility advertising and can't be charged with being against the action because of a selfish motive. We merely believe the Commission has all it can do efficiently without getting into something which really isn't any of its business.

HOW TO PICK SAFE, SANE PRESIDENTS?

The "Eagleton Case" is only the latest example of a serious national problem, says respected New York Times columnist James Reston.

At the critical levels of government below the presidency, vice- presidency and the Cabinet, he points out, it is recognized that high officers of the armed services and key officials of the Central Intelligence, Atomic Energy, space and other sensitive agencies must be checked out physically and mentally before they are given access to top secret information.

Furthermore, it is recognized that these checks, not by the officials' own doctors but by medical boards representing the national interest, should continue regularly during a man's service, lest his health and stability deteriorate under the pressures of high office.

For the scientists who work on atomic weapons, there is such a clear and hard test, but for the president or vice-president, who have the ultimate power of using atomic weapons, there is none.

It is a "recklessly irresponsible system," says Reston, that is "wildly out of date."

But is it really desirable that presidential and vice-presidential candidates be "checked out" by some board of medical examiners, as Reston recommends, "before they are nominated and elected — and checked regularly thereafter"?

Suppose, after the periodic examination of an incumbent president, a majority of the medical board reported that it had doubts about his mental condition. What then — instant impeachment?

Even if only one or two members were of the opinion that the president was coming unglued under pressure, think of the national controversy this would set off.

After all, doctors have been known to disagree in their diagnoses, not to mention their politics. Some cynics would argue that psychiatrists are the last people in the world who should be entrusted with deciding who is and who is not fit to hold high office.

The physical or mental health of a presidential or vice-presidential candidate is, of course, important to the people, as the Eagleton episode so dramatically demonstrated. Because of it, candidates in the future may possibly feel obligated to offer evidence of their psychological soundness.

But an overreliance on this sort of thing could be reckless in its own way.

Lyndon Johnson, for example, would undoubtedly have been declared as normal as a Texas noon had he been examined mentally in 1964. Yet he went on to embroil the nation deeply in a war in Vietnam, an act which some opponents do not stop short of calling "insane."

Were presidents to be regularly certified safe and sane by a board of examiners, it could come to the point where this certification could be used to call into question the mental balance of anyone who dared criticize the actions or policies of an administration.

The slightest question of mental instability is enough to disqualify a man from a sensitive lower- echelon position in government. This is as it should be. The public simply cannot take a direct hand in the appointment or selection of every undersecretary and assistant in every department and agency and has to rely on boards of examiners who follow clear-cut guidelines.

The American electorate does, however, under the Constitution of this republic, have the ultimate power of selection of its two highest officials. It may be a haphazard system, but there is nothing in history to show that it has been reckless or irresponsible.

GREAT MEN MAKE A GREAT NATION

The petroleum industry has had its share of great leaders. One of these was Mr. J. Howard Pew of the Sun Oil Company. When Mr. Pew passed away at 89 years of age, the company released a biographical sketch which is both the history of a man and the history of an industry. He was associated for 70 years with the company founded by his father in 1886.

Through the decades that this company and others in the oil industry worked to make petroleum almost as common as water for a growing country, the public knew little and cared less about the risks, the billions of dollars of investments, the relentless search for improved technology and the tireless initiative of a breed of builders -- individuals -- who lifted the nation with them as they forged ahead. Those who today spend much of their time criticizing the oil industry can profit from a few of the remarks of this late leader of the industry. Regarding his company, he said, "We have never sought privileges nor a sheltered position. Our attitude has always been that we have no divine right to a share and place in our industry. If somebody else can serve the public better in quality and price, he is entitled to the business." In a broader vein, he also observed: "When a people come to look upon their government as the source of all their rights, there will surely come a time when they will look upon that same government as the source of all their wrongs. Freedom is indivisible. Once industrial freedom is lost, political freedom, religious freedom, freedom of the press and of speech will all fall."

100 BILLION DOLLAR APPROPRIATION

In 1962, the budget for all of the operations of the entire United States federal government totaled approximately $100 billion. Now, just ten years later, the size and cost of government has grown to such an extent that a single domestic appropriations bill can provide for spending $100 billion.

The House of Representatives recently approved the annual appropriation bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. The bill provided for $28 billion in new spending. Trust funds and on -going appropriations for the departments covered in the bill totaled an additional $68 billion. Another $5 billion in budget requests will probably be included in the spending provided for by this bill as soon as the appropriations have been authorized. This makes a grand total of over $100 billion.

Congressman H.R. Gross of Iowa reminded "Mr. and Mrs. Tawpayer" that this bill "is just one of some 13 regular appropriation bills that provide funds each year for the various departments and agencies of the federal government." He described this bill as part of a "drive that can only lead to wrecking the country financially."

It is also important to realize that this bill provides for considerably more total spending that the 1973 fiscal year budget for the Department of Defense.

Obviously there can be no hope of stemming inflation so long as spending bills of this magnitude are routinely approved by Congress. We need more constructive Congressmen like Mr. Gross who will condemn these monstrous appropriations and call for a return to fiscal sanity.

Tax Burden Solution
Absentee Lansky Still Operating in U.S.,
Builds Gambling Casino Network Across the Mediterranean

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON —Just the other day American intelligence officers were informed by their Israeli counterparts that special agents of the Jerusalem interior ministry had visited Meyer Lansky in a Tel Aviv suburb and had bluntly told the computer -minded brain of globally organized crime he had a month to mop up his personal affairs, pack up and get out.

If this Mafia -linked brain trust did not go voluntarily, the Israeli special police advised him, they'd drive him to the Lod airport and put him on the first plane out.

American authorities report that the small 71 -year -old Lansky, czar of a worldwide network of gambling casinos, immediately began "negotiating" with Greek and Turkish officials for permanent residence in one of those countries.

Israeli agents moved shortly after that nation's five -judge supreme court, in a one -sentence decision, set precedent by denying the associate of a long line of American underworld dons, such as the late Joe Adonis (Mr. Doto), the sacred privilege of citizenship under the "law of return" for those of the Jewish faith.

For Israel there is historic significance in this decision. The high court ruled against Lansky though it based its dictum on evidence which, though inadmissible under the law, none the less, showed the gambling king to be the wraith -like financial wizard of the multi -billion -dollar organized crime syndicates in America. Thus the Israeli high court set precedent, forever closing that country as a haven for underworld characters of any faith.

American authorities won't pursue Lansky. Their information is that he wants to settle in the "Mediterranean world." It's much like southern Florida --lots of sun, lots of resorts. Thus lots of opportunities for a new network of gambling casinos along the entire littoral of the virtually enclosed sea.

This little thug, a wizard not only of odds but of portraying himself as a whimsical Damon Runyon, oppressed aging man, still runs a financial empire worth some $300 million to $500 million.

Much of this has been traced by what insiders know as the anti -organized crime ''Lansky task force --Financier." This is the 18th --and final -- coordinated Justice Dept. strike force. Its secretive files reportedly show Lansky's investments running deep into "major U.S. corporations." All through "front investors."

This "front" technique also covers his control of at least 12 gambling casinos in Yugoslavia, probably three in Greece and two in Turkey.

Lansky, who is under four indictments in New York and Miami and could go to prison for the rest of his life if he returns, stands trial and is convicted, has never ceased operating casinos elsewhere --such as in the Caribbean. And he now wants to spread his operations in the Middle East and North Africa. Which is why he suddenly arrived in Israel in July 1970.

Simultaneously, American and Israeli authorities zeroed in on him. He worried them. Rarely has any brain been so skilled. Some years ago, one of his virtually unknown lieutenants, Dino Cellini, slipped into London, organized a school for croupiers, worked his way into the now -defunct Colony Sporting Club on Berkeley Square, and soon became, under Lansky's guidance, its manager and director until they were all barred from England.

All the time, Lansky flew in and out of Britain --unnoticed. He and Cellini are now under joint indictment for income tax evasion springing out of a voucher scheme which netted them scores of thousands of dollars in cash from wealthy junketeers they flew into London who lost their money, signed "markers" and paid off to Lansky in the U.S.

Cellini, who comes from the Steubenville, Ohio, area, when last heard from was living in Rome (Italy) selling slot machines.

Lansky and company are under as much surveillance as possible. Their camouflaged gambling empire still works smoothly in the U.S. where an absorption in legalized casino gambling is developing as a way out of state and municipal tax crunches.

For example, both the New York and New Jersey state legislatures are considering authorizing gambling casinos in big hotels. New Jersey's State Gambling Study Commission has been holding regular monthly hearings. There are many in favor --and there are those such as the crusading Herbert Stern, U.S. attorney for the state, who speak out against it. There also is opposition in New York to this method of easing the tax burden brought on by huge welfare and educational costs.

Much of the opposition among the pros such as Stern and Dan Hollman, former head of the unique Federal -state -municipal anti -crime strike force in the Southern District of New York, is based on the belief that Lansky's long arms reach all over the U.S. and might infiltrate even the most dilligent of security forces.

So Lansky never is out of sight of some mighty big brothers.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON —In 1968, the chairman of McDonald's hamburger chain, Ray Kroc, donated $1,000 to Richard Nixon's presidential campaign. Four years and five billion hamburgers later, the burger baron has kicked in a whopping $149,000 to re -elect Nixon.

Kroc vigorously denies that his sudden political splurge has anything to do with a lobbying drive to hold down the minimum wage for McDonald's army of youthful workers.

Despite the disclaimer, though, McDonald's chain and the Nixon Administration have been working simultaneously to keep a regressive youth rate in the minimum wage bill.

The Senate bill would raise the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour. But Nixon and McDonald's want to keep the present $1.60 minimum for workers under 21. This would save the hamburger chain millions in labor costs, since 80 per cent of its 105,000 employees are under 21.

Kroc told my reporter Mark McIntyre that the $149,000 contribution had absolutely nothing to do with the minimum wage controversy. The hamburger king insisted he wasn't trying to influence the White House but merely wanted to buy "some insurance in the free enterprise system in which I strongly believe."

--TRAFFIC IMMUNITY --

The 12,000 foreign diplomats and their dependents, who navigate Washington's cobweb of streets, collect more than 16,000 traffic tickets each year and run up an annual toll of $100,000 in unpaid fines. They are protected by diplomatic immunity from arrest.

In contrast, the State Department with Puritan morality requires American diplomats abroad to pay all their traffic fines.

The astonishing world of the diplomatic ticket fix can be dug out of Washington police records. But like all international intrigue, the evidence is deceiving.

The Russians, for example, look like the worst offenders in the police files. Soviet cars are tagged more than 100 times a year. On almost any given day, 14 or 15 cars, festooned with tickets, are parked in front of the Soviet embassy.

Yet the Russians are actually among the most law -abiding foreign envoys. Because our diplomats have ample parking in Moscow and the Russians have none here, they pull up in front of the "No Parking" signs with unspoken U.S. approval. The Russians seldom abuse their immunity, however, by parking illegally elsewhere.

Not so most other diplomats, who block restaurant and theater entrances all over town.

The Peruvian embassy holds the record for ticket collecting. Counsellor Igor Velazquez, the third -ranking Peruvian, amassed 64 tickets in 1971. This was still short of the 74 picked up by Suzanne Hope Wynne, wife of a Peruvian diplomat. And the embassy's information counsellor, Ricardo Sparks, got 30.

The individual champion was Luz Maria Leonard, a Chilean diplomat assigned to the Organization of American States, who accumulated a grand total of 110 tickets on two automobiles.

Here are others who collected traffic tickets like autumn leaves: Mexico's Eduardo Jiminez -Gonzales, 66; Italy's Angelo Scozia, 58; Sweden's Magnus Nordback, 54; Ecuador's Gladys Bucaram, 51; Argentina's Hugh Raul Marcilese, 47; Ethiopia's Asfaw, Dampte, 43.

They were surpassed, to be sure, by diplomats like Bolivia, Greece, Israel Nigeria and Senegal. But they, like the Russians, have a critical parking problem.

Jiminez -Gonzales, when we reached him, had a typical explanation: "I'm always in a rush. Everybody thinks of Mexicans as saying "manana.' My problem is I hurry too much."

Footnote: Although the diplomats have immunity, the State Department's acting protocol chief Marion Smoak makes a delicate call to malefactors when their ticket records begin to get out of hand.

--NEWS BAN--

Our story about U.S. Ambassador John Hurd's pheasant hunting on South Africa's notorious prison island has caused a front -page flap in Johannesburg.

But we wrote an earlier story that was so hot, it was banned in South Africa. We quoted a secret intelligence report that the African republic of Malawi had kept secret from other black African nations the fact that it is receiving military aid from South Africa.

Journalists covering African affairs had long suspected that South Africa had negotiated an arms deal with Malawi. But until we quoted from the secret report, they lacked documentation.

Our story was never printed, however, in South Africa. Defense Minister Peter Botha banned its publication. He warned South African newspapers that if any hint of the story was leaked to the public, the editors would be prosecuted.

Footnote: South Africa's generosity is based, in part, on Malawi's location. It is strategically situated just north of South Africa, bordering the liberal black nations of Zambia and Tanzania.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bus driver Edgar Parker enjoys happy passengers.

That's why he greets them with, "Hi, how are you?" and urges them to "please watch your step. Have a beautiful afternoon and a lovely weekend."

Parker apologizes to elderly ladies with canes for not pulling even with the curb; says goodby in five languages; points out landmarks in Harlem and midtown Manhattan; waves to merchants and jokes constantly.

Some samples:

"Next stop is the poor house—Rockefeller Plaza."

"Welcome aboard our 747. We have this aircraft disguised as a bus to prevent a hijack. I hope."

The riders love it.

Customers have written him letters, offered candy and free lunches and even tried to kiss him.

"One lady wanted to kiss me goodnight but her husband kept pulling her away," says Parker, a 50-year-old father of three who moved to New York from North Carolina in 1936.

He started driving a city bus four years ago. Before that he ran a liquor store in Harlem.

"Driving a bus in New York is one of the hardest jobs," he says. "Anything you do with the public is hard."

His secret is "neighbor first, God second and me last."

"I love people," says Parker, an ordained minister who spends little time preaching but a lot of hours visiting hospital patients.

"You never see people smile anymore. They're so tense waiting for someone to offer a kind word," he says. "If everybody practices a little love there would be less fear."

Many passengers stop on their way out to thank him for a pleasant ride. A German woman had her friend take her picture alongside him.

How do you spot Parker's bus?

It's marked "4 to Ft. Tyron Park" on an afternoon route, and usually he's heard announcing over his microphone: "All aboard. All aboard. Hi, glad to have you with us today."

OLYMPIC POLITICS SPAWNED TERROR

The horror of Munich has its roots in the subversion of the Olympic ideal first stated by Baron Pierre de Coubertin that the important thing was "taking part." The Baron brought the Games back to the world in 1896 after Emperor Theodosius of Rome had formally abolished them as a pagan ritual 500 years earlier.

The savage killing of 11 Israelis is the denouement, the tragic pyre engulfing Olympic aims.

The idea of "taking part" has been steadily eroded by political pressures extremely manifested in 1968 when a threatened Negro boycott before the Games in Mexico City ultimately produced the raised fist Black Power salute of Tommie Smith and John Carlos.

Political hassles earlier marred the serenity of Olympic competition, but for the first time an incident obviously meant as a propaganda device overshadowed the athletic arena. People came away from Mexico City talking not about the distance runners from Kenya or Debbie Meyer's triple victory in swimming or even Bob Beamon's incredible long jump of 29 feet 2½ inches. They talked about the black gloves on the hands of Smith and Carlos, their heads bowed in defiance of the American flag as they stood on the victory stand.

Way back in 1908, there had been strained British - U.S. relations during the Olympic Games. The Americans felt snubbed because their flag wasn't flying over the stadium in London. In opening day ceremonies, they refused to dip the American flag before King Edward VII. But the marathon victory of Johnny Hayes, a ribbon clerk at Bloomingdale's, obscured the bitterness.

In 1936, the spectre of antisemitism and Adolf Hitler's outlay of $30 million turned the Olympics into a Nazi showcase. But Jesse Owens came home from Berlin an everlasting national hero.

In 1956, a bloody water polo match between Russia and Hungary dominated the news for a day (45 Hungarian athletes later defected to the West). But that was also the year Harold Connolly, an American hammer thrower, met Olga Fikotova, a Czech discus thrower, and then married her.

Lyndon Johnson, for example, would undoubtedly have been declared as normal as a Texas noon had he been examined mentally in 1964. Yet he went on to embroil the nation deeply in a war in Vietnam, an act which some opponents do not stop short of calling "insane."

Were presidents to be regularly certified safe and sane by a board of examiners, it could come to the point where this certification could be used to call into question the mental balance of anyone who dared criticize the actions or policies of an administration.

The slightest question of mental instability is enough to disqualify a man from a sensitive lower-echelon position in government. This is as it should be. The public simply cannot take a direct hand in the appointment or selection of every undersecretary and assistant in every department and agency and has to rely on boards of examiners who follow clear-cut guidelines.

The American electorate does, however, under the Constitution of this republic, have the ultimate power of selection of its two highest officials. It may be a haphazard system, but there is nothing in history to show that it has been reckless or irresponsible.

GREAT MEN MAKE A GREAT NATION

The petroleum industry has had its share of great leaders. One of these was Mr. J. Howard Pew of the Sun Oil Company. When Mr. Pew passed away at 89 years of age, the company released a biographical sketch which is both the history of a man and the history of an industry. He was associated for 70 years with the company founded by his father in 1886.

Through the decades that this company and others in the oil industry worked to make petroleum almost as common as water for a growing country, the public knew little and cared less about the risks, the billions of dollars of investments, the relentless search for improved technology and the tireless initiative of a breed of builders -- individuals -- who lifted the nation with them as they forged ahead. Those who today spend much of their time criticizing the oil industry can profit from a few of the remarks of this late leader of the industry. Regarding his company, he said, "We have never sought privileges nor a sheltered position. Our attitude has always been that we have no divine right to a share and place in our industry. If somebody else can serve the public better in quality and price, he is entitled to the business." In a broader vein, he also observed: "When a people come to look upon their government as the source of all their rights, there will surely come a time when they will look upon that same government as the source of all their wrongs. Freedom is indivisible. Once industrial freedom is lost, political freedom, religious freedom, freedom of the press and of speech will all fall."

100 BILLION DOLLAR APPROPRIATION

In 1962, the budget for all of the operations of the entire United States federal government totaled approximately $100 billion. Now, just ten years later, the size and cost of government has grown to such an extent that a single domestic appropriations bill can provide for spending $100 billion.

The House of Representatives recently approved the annual appropriation bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. The bill provided for $28 billion in new spending. Trust funds and on-going appropriations for the departments covered in the bill totaled an additional $68 billion. Another $5 billion in budget requests will probably be included in the spending provided for by this bill as soon as the appropriations have been authorized. This makes a grand total of over $100 billion.

Congressman H.R. Gross of Iowa reminded "Mr. and Mrs. Tawpayer" that this bill "is just one of some 13 regular appropriation bills that provide funds each year for the various departments and agencies of the federal government." He described this bill as part of a "drive that can only lead to wrecking the country financially."

It is also important to realize that this bill provides for considerably more total spending that the 1973 fiscal year budget for the Department of Defense.

Obviously there can be no hope of stemming inflation so long as spending bills of this magnitude are routinely approved by Congress. We need more constructive Congressmen like Mr. Gross who will condemn these monstrous appropriations and call for a return to fiscal sanity.

Tax Burden Solution
Absentee Lansky Still Operating in U.S.,
Builds Gambling Casino Network Across the Mediterranean

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON —Just the other day American intelligence officers were informed by their Israeli counterparts that special agents of the Jerusalem interior ministry had visited Meyer Lansky in a Tel Aviv suburb and had bluntly told the computer-minded brain of globally organized crime he had a month to mop up his personal affairs, pack up and get out.

If this Mafia-linked brain trust did not go voluntarily, the Israeli special police advised him, they'd drive him to the Lod airport and put him on the first plane out.

American authorities report that the small 71-year-old Lansky, czar of a worldwide network of gambling casinos, immediately began "negotiating" with Greek and Turkish officials for permanent residence in one of those countries.

Israeli agents moved shortly after that nation's five-judge supreme court, in a one-sentence decision, set precedent by denying the associate of a long line of American underworld dons, such as the late Joe Adonis (Mr. Doto), the sacred privilege of citizenship under the "law of return" for those of the Jewish faith.

For Israel there is historic significance in this decision. The high court ruled against Lansky though it based its dictum on evidence which, though inadmissible under the law, none the less, showed the gambling king to be the wraith-like financial wizard of the multi-billion-dollar organized crime syndicates in America. Thus the Israeli high court set precedent, forever closing that country as a haven for underworld characters of any faith.

American authorities won't pursue Lansky. Their information is that he wants to settle in the "Mediterranean world." It's much like southern Florida --lots of sun, lots of resorts. Thus lots of opportunities for a new network of gambling casinos along the entire littoral of the virtually enclosed sea.

This little thug, a wizard not only of odds but of portraying himself as a whimsical Damon Runyon, oppressed aging man, still runs a financial empire worth some $300 million to $500 million.

Much of this has been traced by what insiders know as the anti-organized crime "Lansky task force --Financier." This is the 18th --and final -- coordinated Justice Dept. strike force. Its secretive files reportedly show Lansky's investments running deep into "major U.S. corporations." All through "front investors."

This "front" technique also covers his control of at least 12 gambling casinos in Yugoslavia, probably three in Greece and two in Turkey.

Lansky, who is under four indictments in New York and Miami and could go to prison for the rest of his life if he returns, stands trial and is convicted, has never ceased operating casinos elsewhere --such as in the Caribbean. And he now wants to spread his operations in the Middle East and North Africa. Which is why he suddenly arrived in Israel in July 1970.

Simultaneously, American and Israeli authorities zeroed in on him. He worried them. Rarely has any brain been so skilled. Some years ago, one of his virtually unknown lieutenants, Dino Cellini, slipped into London, organized a school for croupiers, worked his way into the now-defunct Colony Sporting Club on Berkeley Square, and soon became, under Lansky's guidance, its manager and director until they were all barred from England.

All the time, Lansky flew in and out of Britain --unnoticed. He and Cellini are now under joint indictment for income tax evasion springing out of a voucher scheme which netted them scores of thousands of dollars in cash from wealthy junketeers they flew into London who lost their money, signed "markers" and paid off to Lansky in the U.S.

Cellini, who comes from the Steubenville, Ohio, area, when last heard from was living in Rome (Italy) selling slot machines.

Lansky and company are under as much surveillance as possible. Their camouflaged gambling empire still works smoothly in the U.S. where an absorption in legalized casino gambling is developing as a way out of state and municipal tax crunches.

For example, both the New York and New Jersey state legislatures are considering authorizing gambling casinos in big hotels. New Jersey's State Gambling Study Commission has been holding regular monthly hearings. There are many in favor --and there are those such as the crusading Herbert Stern, U.S. attorney for the state, who speak out against it. There also is opposition in New York to this method of easing the tax burden brought on by huge welfare and educational costs.

Much of the opposition among the pros such as Stern and Dan Hollman, former head of the unique Federal-state-municipal anti-crime strike force in the Southern District of New York, is based on the belief that Lansky's long arms reach all over the U.S. and might infiltrate even the most dilligent of security forces.

So Lansky never is out of sight of some mighty big brothers.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON —In 1968, the chairman of McDonald's hamburger chain, Ray Kroc, donated $1,000 to Richard Nixon's presidential campaign. Four years and five billion hamburgers later, the burger baron has kicked in a whopping $149,000 to re-elect Nixon.

Kroc vigorously denies that his sudden political splurge has anything to do with a lobbying drive to hold down the minimum wage for McDonald's army of youthful workers.

Despite the disclaimer, though, McDonald's chain and the Nixon Administration have been working simultaneously to keep a regressive youth rate in the minimum wage bill.

The Senate bill would raise the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour. But Nixon and McDonald's want to keep the present $1.60 minimum for workers under 21. This would save the hamburger chain millions in labor costs, since 80 per cent of its 105,000 employees are under 21.

Kroc told my reporter Mark McIntyre that the $149,000 contribution had absolutely nothing to do with the minimum wage controversy. The hamburger king insisted he wasn't trying to influence the White House but merely wanted to buy "some insurance in the free enterprise system in which I strongly believe."

--TRAFFIC IMMUNITY --

The 12,000 foreign diplomats and their dependents, who navigate Washington's cobweb of streets, collect more than 16,000 traffic tickets each year and run up an annual toll of $100,000 in unpaid fines. They are protected by diplomatic immunity from arrest.

In contrast, the State Department with Puritan morality requires American diplomats abroad to pay all their traffic fines.

The astonishing world of the diplomatic ticket fix can be dug out of Washington police records. But like all international intrigue, the evidence is deceiving.

The Russians, for example, look like the worst offenders in the police files. Soviet cars are tagged more than 100 times a year. On almost any given day, 14 or 15 cars, festooned with tickets, are parked in front of the Soviet embassy.

Yet the Russians are actually among the most law-abiding foreign envoys. Because our diplomats have ample parking in Moscow and the Russians have none here, they pull up in front of the "No Parking" signs with unspoken U.S. approval. The Russians seldom abuse their immunity, however, by parking illegally elsewhere.

Not so most other diplomats, who block restaurant and theater entrances all over town.

The Peruvian embassy holds the record for ticket collecting. Counsellor Igor Velazquez, the third-ranking Peruvian, amassed 64 tickets in 1971. This was still short of the 74 picked up by Suzanne Hope Wynne, wife of a Peruvian diplomat. And the embassy's information counsellor, Ricardo Sparks, got 30.

The individual champion was Luz Maria Leonard, a Chilean diplomat assigned to the Organization of American States, who accumulated a grand total of 110 tickets on two automobiles.

Here are others who collected traffic tickets like autumn leaves: Mexico's Eduardo Jiminez-Gonzales, 66; Italy's Angelo Scozia, 58; Sweden's Magnus Nordback, 54; Ecuador's Gladys Bucaram, 51; Argentina's Hugh Raul Marcilese, 47; Ethiopia's Asfaw, Dampte, 43.

They were surpassed, to be sure, by diplomats like Bolivia, Greece, Israel Nigeria and Senegal. But they, like the Russians, have a critical parking problem.

Jiminez-Gonzales, when we reached him, had a typical explanation: "I'm always in a rush. Everybody thinks of Mexicans as saying "manana.' My problem is I hurry too much."

Footnote: Although the diplomats have immunity, the State Department's acting protocol chief Marion Smoak makes a delicate call to malefactors when their ticket records begin to get out of hand.

--NEWS BAN--

Our story about U.S. Ambassador John Hurd's pheasant hunting on South Africa's notorious prison island has caused a front-page flap in Johannesburg.

But we wrote an earlier story that was so hot, it was banned in South Africa. We quoted a secret intelligence report that the African republic of Malawi had kept secret from other black African nations the fact that it is receiving military aid from South Africa.

Journalists covering African affairs had long suspected that South Africa had negotiated an arms deal with Malawi. But until we quoted from the secret report, they lacked documentation.

Our story was never printed, however, in South Africa. Defense Minister Peter Botha banned its publication. He warned South African newspapers that if any hint of the story was leaked to the public, the editors would be prosecuted.

Footnote: South Africa's generosity is based, in part, on Malawi's location. It is strategically situated just north of South Africa, bordering the liberal black nations of Zambia and Tanzania.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bus driver Edgar Parker enjoys happy passengers.

That's why he greets them with, "Hi, how are you?" and urges them to "please watch your step. Have a beautiful afternoon and a lovely weekend."

Parker apologizes to elderly ladies with canes for not pulling even with the curb; says goodby in five languages; points out landmarks in Harlem and midtown Manhattan; waves to merchants and jokes constantly.

Some samples:

"Next stop is the poor house—Rockefeller Plaza."

"Welcome aboard our 747. We have this aircraft disguised as a bus to prevent a hijack. I hope."

The riders love it.

Customers have written him letters, offered candy and free lunches and even tried to kiss him.

"One lady wanted to kiss me goodnight but her husband kept pulling her away," says Parker, a 50-year-old father of three who moved to New York from North Carolina in 1936.

He started driving a city bus four years ago. Before that he ran a liquor store in Harlem.

"Driving a bus in New York is one of the hardest jobs," he says. "Anything you do with the public is hard."

His secret is "neighbor first, God second and me last."

"I love people," says Parker, an ordained minister who spends little time preaching but a lot of hours visiting hospital patients.

"You never see people smile anymore. They're so tense waiting for someone to offer a kind word," he says. "If everybody practices a little love there would be less fear."

Many passengers stop on their way out to thank him for a pleasant ride. A German woman had her friend take her picture alongside him.

How do you spot Parker's bus?

It's marked "4 to Ft. Tyron Park" on an afternoon route, and usually he's heard announcing over his microphone: "All aboard. All aboard. Hi, glad to have you with us today."

Break In Farm Home

NEW MADRID — The farm home of Marvin Griffin on Highway 80 five miles east of Interstate 55 was burglarized Tuesday.

Items reported stolen from the unoccupied house include a shotgun, rifle, cooking utensils and assorted personal items. The Griffin family has been living in East Prairie since the home was damaged by fire two months ago.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Ivy said entry was made by forcing a storm window.

HIGHEST ROAD

DENVER (AP) — The highest auto road in the United States winds its way to the top of 14,264-foot Mt. Evans, about 40 miles west of here.

Break-In Reported

The Lloyd Rudisill trailer at 101 Chris Drive, was reported broken into sometime between 11:30 a.m. and 9:45 p.m. Wednesday, according to police.

Apparently, nothing was taken. Entry was gained by forcing open a small window on the door and uniocking it on the inside.

Burglar Caught

ESSEX — Burglary of the Dempsey Gardner mobile home was interrupted Wednesday night when Gardner returned home and apprehended one of two persons who ran from his trailer home.

Gardner caught Tommy Everett Jones, 24, of Dexter and held him with a .22-caliber rifle until highway patrol and a Stoddard County deputy sheriff arrived and made the arrest.

To Establish Diplomatic Relations

Japan-China Declare Peace

PEKING (AP) — Prime Minister Chou En-lai announced tonight that China and Japan have decided to establish diplomatic relations and terminate the state of war between the two countries.

The 74-year-old premier said in a farewell toast at a glittering banquet in the Hall of the People given by Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan that this historic step will make a "positive contribution" to the relaxation of tension in Asia and to world peace.

Tanaka, 54, who arrived here Sunday on a state visit, said normalization of relations is only the first step and that he will try his best to continue the trend of rapprochement

Japan's 22-year-old state of diplomatic relations with Taiwan is expected to be broken by Friday morning, when Chou and Tanaka sign a joint communique outlining the steps they have taken

"We are going to end the abnormal state of affairs which has existed between the two countries up to now," Chou said. "Ther termination of the state of war and the normalization of relations between China and Japan — the realization of this long-cherished wishes of the Chinese and Japanese peoples will open a new chapter in the relations between the two countries and make a postive contribution to the relaxation of tension in Asia and safeguarding the world peace."

The banquet took place after the fourth and final round of talks by Chou and Tanaka.

A Japanese spokesman said after their 80-minute meeting, "Our major problems have been solved. The summit has been a success."

The joint communique, ending 22 years of hostility and distrust between Japan and the Chinese mainland, will be signed Friday morning in the Great Hall of the People.

Tanaka and Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira will sign for Japan. Chou will be the sole signer for China.

Earlier, Mao Tse-tung gave the Chinese-Japanese summit his official public blessing by meeting with Tanaka.

The Chinese Communist party leader received Tanaka Wednesday night in the private residence where he met President Nixon in February. They talked for an hour and the session was described as "very friendly" and cordial.

It was Mao's first encounter with a Japanese prime minister in more than half a century as a revolutionary leader.

The gesture, coming midway in Tanaka's meetings with Premier Chou En-lai, was a tipoff that the two men are moving toward agreement on establishing diplomatic relations and working out a series of pacts which will formalize their new ties.

As party chief, Mao is the most powerful man in China. Chou is his second in command.

Official color photographs showed Mao ruddy- faced and in apparent robust health as he shook hands with Tanaka.

Dressed in a gray civilian tunic, Mao remarked homorously that he hoped the "fighting" with Chou was over. And he observed that once people have fought they become more friendly.

Meanwhile, reports from Peking and Tokyo mentioned a Communist Chinese official born in Tokyo and a Japanese diplomat who once lived in China as candidates to be the first ambassadors to be exchanged by China and Japan.

The reports said the two nations probably will announce the normalization of diplomatic relations before Saturday and that China and Japan will exchange envoys within six months.

Mentioned for the ambassadorial appointments were China's Liao Cheng-chih, president of the China- Japan Friendship Association, and Heishiro Ogawa, director of the Japanese Foreign Ministry's Foreign Service Training Institute.

Liao, 64, is a close associate of Chou and since Tanaka's arrival in Peking Monday he has been identified as adviser to the Chinese Foreign Ministry.

Three Heard In Magistrate

BLOOMFIELD — Three cases were heard in Magistrate Court Wednesday by Judge Koss Blomeyer.

Steven Michael Dix, 18, of St. Louis, arrested Aug. 30 in Bernie and charged with possession of drugs, appeared without counsel and is being held pending $2,000 bond.

Clyde Edward Hopple, 20, of St. Louis, arrested with Dix, failed to appear and a warrant for his arrest was issued.

Harmon Fish, Al Fish, Louis Dejournett, Terry Dejournett and Billy R. Baker, all of Bloomfield, were charged with burglary and stealing of two guns from the home of Walter Morlan of Bloomfield Route One on Sept. 10. They were bound over to Circuit Court and fine was set at $2,000 each.

Harold Cloud of Louisiana was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of exhibiting a deadly weapon and assault with intent to rape a 15-year- old Puxico girl.

SeMo Mailmen Hold Meeting

POPLAR BLUFF — The fall meeting of the Southeast Missouri division of National Association of Letter Carriers was held Sunday in Hickory House Restaurant.

Speakers for the noon meeting were Lou Telino, national business agent of Cleveland, Ohio, and Charles Christian, N.A.L.C. state president from St. Louis.

The United Postal Service freeze and the new health benefit bill were discussed and the group debated the park and loop system of mail delivery, which the area will be changing to in the near future.

Forty- nine representatives from 13 area towns — Sikeston, Charleston, East Prairie, New Madrid, Caruthersville, Cape Girardeau, Oak Hill, Malden, Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Portageville, Hayti and Chaffee — were present.

Percentage wise, East Prairie had the largest number in attendance. Representing East Prairie were John Chandley, president of local 5904 National Association of Letter Carriers; Wayne Presson, secretary; Earl Wamble, past president, Charles Ward, chief shop steward; and Ralph Lingle.

New Babies

UMFRESS - Mr. and Mrs. James Umfress of Sikeston are the parents of a daughter, Tamra Ladawn, born Saturday at 7:19 p.m. in Missouri Delta Community Hospital. She weighed eight pounds, 12 ounces.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H.R. Newton of Sikeston. Mrs. Frances Umfress of Los Angeles, Calif., is the paternal grandmother. Umfress is manager of Southside Oil Co.

Donation Made By 40 & 8

SeMo Voiture 460 of the 40 & 8 recently donated $100 to the Loyal Akins family of New Madrid and $100 to the Pierce Burton family of Bertrand.

Both families recently lost their homes and personal possessions by fire and the assistance was provided to take of clothing and food for the children, who range from two to 16 years old.

This type of emergency help, according to Chef de Gare Jim O'Connor, is provided through the 40 & 8's National Child Welfare Fund, to which each member contributes through yearly dues.

Other national projects sponsored by the 40 & 8 are nurses training assistance and Carville Star subscriptions, a magazine which brings the story of Hansen's disease to the general public and tells what progress is being made in the rehabilitation of those afflicted with Hansen's disease at Carville Hospital in Louisiana.

Ann Landers

Marriage Plan Devised

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading your column for a long time and believe that you give very sensible advice. But I think you could do a little better with one problem that pops up often. Even though you didn't ask for my help, I'm going to offer it because I've had some practical experience in this area and you haven't.

I am referring to women over 24 who have been going with a guy five or six years and they can't get the dude to make it legal. These dames need a battle plan that works. You might not consider my plan honorable, but believe me, it's a great way to find out if the guy will EVER marry you --or if he's worth marrying at all.

Tell him you're pregnant and check his reaction. If he says the baby can't possibly be his and accuses you of cheating on him, or gets mad and tells you how dumb you are for getting pregnant, or offers to give you money and suggests you get lost --if he takes any of these routes you'll know what kind of rat you've been wasting your time on. If he says, "We'll get married right away," tell him the next day that you were mistaken and relax in the knowledge that he really does love you and is worth waiting for.

I know this plan works because I tried it and now I'm ---His Mrs.

Dear Mrs.: There's no denying that your little scheme might separate the heroes from the bums but I don't recommend it. It seems to me that a girl should not need to connive, plot and make up lies to test the sincerity of her lover. If she must sink to the level you suggest, something is rotten in Denmark.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the item in your column about the mother who hated to see her only daughter move so far away after her marriage. The mother signed herself "Anxious." It brought to mind my own "flight from the nest." I was the youngest of six, the baby of the family, and very close to my mom. I moved from Oklahoma to California at 19 and cried all the way. My folks couldn't even afford to be at my wedding so I was really on my own.

Now, ten years later, I must admit it was the best thing in the world for me. I learned to be a wife instead of Mama's little girl. There were times when I hated being grown up and would have given anything to run home to mama, but I never had the money to do it.

I have a great husband now and four of the most beautiful, healthiest, happiest kids in the world. I learned to cope with life without leaning on my folks. My parents visit us when they can and we try to get back to see them once every year. Those visits are nothing short of heaven. I overlook the little things that used to irk me and we thoroughly enjoy one another's company.

I still cry every time I say goodbye to my folks but I'm grateful to them for raising me to be independent and pray that I will do as well with our four. ---Pushed Out of the Nest

Dear Pushed: Beautiful! I hope "Anxious" sees your letter and takes heart. Thank you for writing.

Confidential to Tiger In My Tank: Congratulations, but what do you have under your hood? From the sound of your letter I suggest that you take it easy with that 1910 model.

Scheduled for Oct. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Charleston Armory on South Main Street, the club has announced that L. Boebel Patton of West Frankfort, Ill., will be the guest speaker.

Patton has been a member of the International Platform Association for 10 years and comes to Charleston highly recommended as a public speaker. Combining humor with fact, Patton has chosen as the title of his address, "Tall in the Morning."

The highlight of the evening will be announcement of the 1972 Woman of the Year, who will have been chosen from a group of nominees submitted by local clubs and organizations, the final selection being made by out-of-town judges.

Prior to revealing the name of the 1972 winner, the Charleston club of Business and Professional Women will announce its selection of the 1972 Honorary Woman of the Year.

Goebel Patton

Tickets may be obtained from any club member or by contacting Mrs. William Knight, Chairman, 508 South Main St., Charleston.

"Joy is the emotional expression of the courageous, yes, to one's own being", from "The Courage to Be", by Paul Tillich, illustrates that understanding the dynamics of human relations and adjusting them will affect your happiness and emotional health.

Perception and skill in interacting with others is a large part of what Abraham Maslow has called " a self-actualizing person." This type was described in last week's articles -a positive person, a self-respecting, achieving individual whose adjustments to livng makes him pleasant to be with.

Maslow has said that all psychological needs arise from the three basic needs of safety, love and self-esteem. When these are satisfied, the need for self-actualization emerges. Not only is it desirable to fulfill the best that is in you, it's necessary for true contentment and inner peace (emotional health).

"What a man can do, he must be." Personal goals, like being a good mother, playing varsity, writing poetry, should be set and worked on to realize our capacity.

One of the many traits of a "self-actualizer" is the continued freshness of appreciation. He appreciates the basic goods of life, no matter how stale they may become to others. A sunset is always thrilling and the casual work-a-day business of living can be new and exciting.

In summary, appreciative awareness of ourselves, our surroundings and the beautiful diversity of people and life can help each of us become everything we are capable of becoming.

"The world is so full of a number of things, I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings." Robert Louis Stevenson.

Harter-Savell

EAST PRAIRIE — Nelson Memorial Methodist Church was the setting Sept. 16 at 3 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Julia (Judy) Elizabeth Savell and A. Glennon Harter II.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Glen Lashley, minister of the church, and the Rev. Michael F. Swalina of St. Henry's Catholic Church of Charleston.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel M. Savell, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin G. Harter of Cape Girardeau.

Thirteen branched candelabra with white, burning tapers graced either side of the choir loft, framing the four trees of white candles and greenery and two baskets of red rover chrysanthemums. Roping of springeri lay on the altar railings and red and gold bows and greenery adorned the windows. Family pews were marked by red and gold bows. The candles were lighted by Bernard Ivie, who also served as usher.

Prior to the ceremony, Miss Bonnie Myers of DeSoto sang, unaccompanied, "We Have Only Just Begun" and then following the vows, "The Lord's Prayer", accompanied by organist Mrs. Weldon Bird. As the bride and groom approached the communion table, extinguished two candles and lighted one together as a symbol of their unit, Miss Myers sang "One Hand, One Heart."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore the wedding gown of her cousin, Mrs. John Fenfrow of Woodbridge, Va. The gown was of silk - nubbed peau de soie. The bateau neckline and bell sleeves were trimmed with scalloped English lace in the design of tiny daisies. The A-line skirt features accents of the English lace and her chapel train flowed from the neckline into a soft V. A forward cap of peau and lace caught her bouffant veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of tropicanis roses with ivy and red and gold steamers tied in lover's knots.

Miss Jean Savell, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. she wore a floor-length dress of red, sheer chiffon over gold taffeta. The skirt, softly gathered to the bodice and the empire waistline, was accented with embroidered ribbon in red and gold. The dress had a low, round neckline and short, flared sleeves. She carried a nosegay similar to the bridal bouquet of tropieannis roses.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Raymond Brown of Anna, Ill., Mrs. Vincent Olsen of St. Louis, Miss Carol Von Cloedt of Kirkwood and Miss Mary Harter, of Cape Girardeauu, sister of the groom. Their gowns were identical to the honor attendant but in gold chiffon over gold taffeta. They carried red rover chrysanthemums in arm bouquets. Their headpieces were bows with long streamers of the red and gold, embroidered trim.

Catherine Wachter of St. Louis, cousin of the groom, served as flower girl. She was gowned in the same manner as the honor attendant and carried a red lace basket with petals of red tropicannis roses and gold cushion mums. Ring bearer was Tre Wallhausen of Charleston, cousin of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Glennon Harter II

The groom chose his brother, Richard Harter of Cape Girardeau, as best man. Groomsmen were Gene Zerwig of Bloomsdale, Jim McCauley of Cape Girardeau, Tom Kemper of St. Louis and Vincent Olsen of St. Louis, who also served as usher.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the church dining hall. Servers were Mrs. Larry Cooper of Sikeston, Mrs. Gary Risenhoover of Portageville, Miss Geri Brand of St. Louis and Miss Gidget Criss of St. Louis.

Miss Julie Harter of Brentwood, sister of the groom, presided at the guest register, prior to the ceremony. The table for the guest register was covered with red felt and draped with gold net. Matthew Wallhausen of Charleston, cousin of the bride, distributed rice bags to the guests.

The couple is at home at 814 North West End Boulevard in Cape Girardeau, where the groom is associated with his father in Pure Ice Co.

The new Mrs. Harter is a 1968 graduate of East Prairie High School and graduated last spring from Southeast Missouri University at Cape Girardeau with a bachelor of science degree in education. Harter graduated from Central High School in Cape in 1966 and received a bachelor of science degree in business and psychology in January 1972.

Out-of-town guests included:

Miss Imelda Eisenbeis of Chicago, Ill., Miss Pearol Moe of Davenport, Iowa, Miss Beaulah Wildermuth of East Moline, Ill., Mrs. Allan Fessor and Melinda of Columbia, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Olin Kettlecamp of Red Bud, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. William R. McLaughlan and family of Chester, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. John Harter, Mrs. William Wachter and children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamilton and family, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bonsack and family, Miss Beryl Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. James Eisenbeis and family and Mrs B. J. Eisenbeis of St. Louis.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Evans of Eldon, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Emmendorder and Mr. and Mrs. Ab Fadler of Perryville; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mueller Jr. and family, Mrs. Paul Mueller Sr. and Miss Marguerite Riley of Jackson, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. Marey McCauley and Mrs. John E. Riley of Cape Girardeau; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Haslauer of Cairo, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Waymon Halford of Bell City; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Riley, Floyd Amos Riley and Voyne Shanks of New Madrid; and Mr. and Mrs. Art Wallhausen Jr. and sons and Mrs. Art Wallhausen Sr. of Charleston.

WEDDING SUPPER

Patience Pays Off....Squirrels Hand Fed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Patience and psychological immunity to bites are the two essential attributes of a successful squirrel tamer, says Mylei Penna, who comes to a park overlooking Kansas City twice a day to feed the squirrels.

"I started coming about seven months ago," Mylei said. "At first, I would tease them a bit, but after I got a few memntoes of their sharp teeth on my hands, I stopped."

Mylei explained it took him about six months to earn the trust of the squirrels. Now, whenever he walks through the park with his bag of aw peanuts, waiving a white handkerchief, the squirrels leap from their hiding places. They stop at a safe distance and wait for Mylei to motion to one of them with the handkerchief.

4-H Week Is Oct. 1-7

BENTON — 4-H members across the country will observe National 4-H Week Oct. 1-7, Dee Goedke area youth agent has announced. 4-H is a voluntary youth organization designed for educational purposes to meet the needs of boys and girls 8 to 19 years old.

4-H in Missouri is supported through the University of Missouri Extension Division which provides literature and instruction for club leaders and project leader.

Membership in Scott County totals more than 450, with 124 adult leaders, and Stoddard County has more than 235 young people and 81 leaders according to Goedeke.

4-H helps to develop character, knowledge, leadership and citizenship through various projects, activities and recreation.

The 4-H Club is comprised of boys and girls who join or organize a club and enroll in a project. Members select club leaders, club officers, help plan the club program and projects under the guidance of an adult volunteer leader.

Each member is expected to have a project, attend club meetings and take part in the club program. Members successfully completing one year receive a 4-H emblem completion pin.

There are over 100 projects for boys and girls to choose from, Goedeke said, but there are also special trips, dinners and banquets and a chance to participate in area and state fairs, plus a chance for college scholarships.

Goedeke adds that "National 4-H week is a fine time for boys and girls to join 4-H and to learn the new way and find the new day." He has an office at Benton, telephone number, 545-3517 and one at Bloomfield, telephone number, 568-3344.

Sikeston Predicted To Lose

Tonight's Centralia, Ill. - Cape Girardeau Central clash at Houck Stadium kicks of a big week of high school football action that has nine games scheduled Friday and one Saturday as the season moves into its fourth week of action.

Only four teams — two in the Northern Division and one each in the bootheel and Southern brackets — remain undefeated, while four grid units — two in the Southern and one each in the Bootheel and Northern — are winless on the season.

According to our weekly panel of prognosticators, no changes are forecast, although the group is undecided whether the Hayti Indians will remain in the unbeaten ranks after Friday's engagement with the Dexter Bearcats.

Going into this week's action, Cape Central is the leading offensive club in Southeast Missouri, scoring 115 points in three games while the Jackson Indians are the top defensive unit, allowing only seven points in three battles. Both are Northern Division clubs.

Cape Central and Perryville are unanimous choices by the panel of guessers — Danny Summerfield, Tony Ford, Eddie Smart, Ron Hornback, John Greer, Jerry Gentry, Bobby Gentry, Rook Forbis, Rovina Ralph, yours truly and a new member ... The Shadow — to score wins this week. The Bengals are 35-14 favorites, while the Pirates are 21-7 choices.

Ford is the leading prognosticator after three weeks of action with an .857 average on 18 of 21 correct calls. The Purple Smoot, who failed to render any guesses this week, rates second with an .833 mark on 15 of 18, while Smart is third with a .787 average on 26 of 33.

Steve Myers, another member failing to mail in his guesses, is tied for fourth with Mrs. Ralph. Both have a .772 mark on 17 of 22 guesses. Your journalist is fifth with a .757 mark on 25 of 33. Greer, Morgan, Forbis, Jerry Gentry, Hornback and Bobby Gentry rank in that order.

Now, back to this week's predictions.

Jackson is a solid choice to remain undefeated when it engages Poplar Bluff Friday. The Indians are 10-1 favorites and a 21-7 pick.

Kennett is picked to return to the win column after last week's scalping at the hands of Jackson. The Tribe is an 8-3 favorite over Paragould, Ark., by a 28-14 score.

Sikeston is a 6-5 underdog at home against Fairley High of Memphis, Tenn. The southern visitors are undefeated and are picked by a 21-6 score. But I personally feel otherwise.

The Malden Green Waves are 7-4 picks over Caruthersville. Coach Jack Phillips' crew is young and inexperienced, but seems to have recovered sufficiently from two opening defeats and will be a deciding factor in the Southern race ... They'll start their drive toward that goal with Friday's 28-13 win.

Scott City is a unanimous choice of the panel to win, but I differ with the group's thoughts ... This is old Swami's upset pick of the week ... Chaffee 21-20.

Coach Clyde Vaughn's Dexter Bearcats are narrow favorites to end Hayti's unbeaten season ... The panel is divided at 5-5, but I gave the Cats the nod ... DHS 28-26.

Portageville is a solid 9-1 favorite, with one panel member selecting a tie with East Prairie. The Bulldogs were sluggish last week, but will prevail with a sharper offense. PHS 21-13.

Gosnell, Ark., is a 9-2 favorite to keep Gideon in the loss column. The Bulldogs are 28-13 underdogs.

Doniphan is a narrow favorite to defeat Willow Springs ... The panel ended in a 5-5 deadlock with the old Swami casting the deciding vote again ... DHS 26-19.

Join with us again next week, when the fearless panel of guessers try again to give you a keen insight into Southeast Missouri high school football.

Freshman Opener At Perryville

Sikeston High School's freshman football team will kick off its season at Perryville tonight.

George Hale is head coach.

The Bulldog freshmen competed against Charleston in a controlled scrimmage Tuesday evening and ended in an 18-18 tie with the Bluejays.

SYDNEY (AP) — Six Australians have made bookings to London on the first Concorde flight from Sydney if it eventuates in 1975. One, a man aged 76, is hoping the date of the flight can be advanced.

3,300 Watch Birds

ST. LOUIS (AP) — General manager Bing Devine of the St. Louis Cardinals says the National League club stands to lose at least $600,000 from a drop in attendance during the 1972 baseball season.

"We won't know until we get an accounting and can make some kind of statement," Devine said Wednesday, "but based on what the break-even figure at the gate is, it's not too hard to make an estimate."

A late start in April due to the Baseball Players Association strikel the Cards' poor performance in May and failure to contend for the NL's East Division title contributed to the drop in attendance to 1,196,714, Devine said.

Describing 1.5 million as the figure needed to break even, he noted the club lost four home dates due to the player strike at the outset of the season and was down 100,000 in season ticket sales.

The Cards, who experimented with rookies during the final month of the season, drew a six-year attendance low of 3,300 for Wednesday's home finale against the New York Mets.

Their attendance for the season was the lowest since moving to their downtown stadium in 1967. Last year's attendance mark was 1,604,671.

Aaron Hits 672rd HR

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hank Aaron just goes on and on while Johnny Bench goes in streaks. But no matter which way they go, they're both quite satisfied with this season, thank you.

"I'd like to hit a few more home runs this year," Aaron said Wednesday night after slugging his 33rd of the season and 672nd of his career in Atlanta's 8-5 victory over Cincinnati.

"But I'll be satisfied if I get 35 this year," Bad Henry added. "It'll leave me 40 to tie." And his manager, Eddie Mathews, has no doubt Aaron will surpass Babe Ruth's alltime homer record of 714.

"Hank just goes on and on," the Braves' field general said. "It's just a matter of time with him. He'll do it. He's really something else, isn't he?"

Bench has been something else this season. For one thing, he's bunched his homers in spurts. "I'm a streak hitter," he said. "I have seven homers in the last seven games I've played and I hit seven in five games earlier this year.

"This season, in some ways, has been more satisfying than 1970," he added. Two years ago he won Most Valuable Player honors with his 45 homers and 148 runs batted in, both tops in the National League. In 1971 he sagged to just 27 homers and 61 RBI.

"A lot of people were saying after my bad year last year that 1970 was a fluke for me." Bench has very convincingly disproved that notion. He hit his 40th homer to drive in his 122nd run—both tops in the majors—in the Reds' losing cause against the Braves.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 3-1, St. Louis silenced the New York Mets 4-0, the Chicago Cubs clubbed Montreal 8-0, Houston beat San Francisco 3-0 and Los Angeles stopped San Diego 2-0.

In the American League, Boston beat Milwaukee 7-5, Cleveland blanked Baltimore 3-0, California tamed Texas 3-1, Kansas City whipped the Chicago White Sox 4-2, Detroit nipped the New York Yankees 6-5 and, in a twinight doubleheader, Oakland swept Minnesota 1-0 in 11 innings and 2-1 in 10.

"I'm not thinking 'homer' every time I go up to the plate," Aaron said after Atlanta's triumph. "I'm just trying to meet the ball and I figure the homers will take care of themselves."

Aaron hit his homer in the first inning but Bench's shot triggered a three-run rally that put the Reds on top after two. After six innings, though, the score was 4-4.

So in the seventh, Aaron just met the ball, hitting a tiebreaking single to start a three-run uprising that gave the Braves the margin of victory. In all, Atlanta battered three Cincinnati pitchers for 16 hits.

"Sometimes," Dave Cash of the Pirates said, "you have to play with a little pain." But what he did was anything but painful as far as Pittsburgh was concerned.

Cash had broken the thumb on his throwing hand on Labor Day. On Wednesday night, just 23 days later, he was back in the Bucs' lineup. And, despite the injury, he swatted a pair of hits against the Phillies, one of them a tie-breaking double in the fifth inning that paved the way to victory.

Although the fracture hasn't fully healed, Cash is more concerned about the upcoming championship playoffs with the Reds. "My timing is off," he said. "I'm out in front of ball. It'll take about six or seven more games. I don't worry about hitting. That comes natural."

But when someone asked Bill Virdon if Cash has to prove anything in order to regain his starting job at second base, the Pirates' manager replied: "He doesn't have to prove anything to me. I know he can play." Rennie Stennett had the job while Cash was sidelined.

The mound was a nice place to be as far as Al Santorini, Don Wilson, Rick Reuschel and Don Sutton were concerned.

PP&K Set Saturday

Clint Elledge noted today that registration for Punt, Pass and Kick Competition is still open to all boys 8-13 years of age and that all a boy must do to sign up for PP&K is come into the Sikeston Motor Co. showroom with either a parent or guardian. There is no entry fee or charge of any kind. Registration closes Friday.

"We'll be having a total of 18 winners' trophies in our local PP&K Competition on Saturday," Elledge said, "and, from our contest, winners could go on to win in the zone, district, area and division competitions. After that, top competitors in each age group will go to Dallas where they'll be in the national finals at the Pro Bowl Game, Jan. 21."

This is the 12th anniversary year for PP&K, sponsored by Ford Dealers of America and the National Football League.

The Sikeston Jaycees assist in the administration of the local program, which will be held at Public School Stadium Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. SHS Coach Pete Cirrintano will present the trophies.

Sikeston Predicted To Lose

Tonight's Centralia, Ill. - Cape Girardeau Central clash at Houck Stadium kicks of a big week of high school football action that has nine games scheduled Friday and one Saturday as the season moves into its fourth week of action.

Only four teams — two in the Northern Division and one each in the bootheel and Southern brackets — remain undefeated, while four grid units — two in the Southern and one each in the Bootheel and Northern — are winless on the season.

According to our weekly panel of prognosticators, no changes are forecast, although the group is undecided whether the Hayti Indians will remain in the unbeaten ranks after Friday's engagement with the Dexter Bearcats.

Going into this week's action, Cape Central is the leading offensive club in Southeast Missouri, scoring 115 points in three games while the Jackson Indians are the top defensive unit, allowing only seven points in three battles. Both are Northern Division clubs.

Cape Central and Perryville are unanimous choices by the panel of guessers — Danny Summerfield, Tony Ford, Eddie Smart, Ron Hornback, John Greer, Jerry Gentry, Bobby Gentry, Rook Forbis, Rovina Ralph, yours truly and a new member ... The Shadow — to score wins this week. The Bengals are 35-14 favorites, while the Pirates are 21-7 choices.

Ford is the leading prognosticator after three weeks of action with an .857 average on 18 of 21 correct calls. The Purple Smoot, who failed to render any guesses this week, rates second with an .833 mark on 15 of 18, while Smart is third with a .787 average on 26 of 33.

Steve Myers, another member failing to mail in his guesses, is tied for fourth with Mrs. Ralph. Both have a .772 mark on 17 of 22 guesses. Your journalist is fifth with a .757 mark on 25 of 33. Greer, Morgan, Forbis, Jerry Gentry, Hornback and Bobby Gentry rank in that order.

Now, back to this week's predictions.

Jackson is a solid choice to remain undefeated when it engages Poplar Bluff Friday. The Indians are 10-1 favorites and a 21-7 pick.

Kennett is picked to return to the win column after last week's scalping at the hands of Jackson. The Tribe is an 8-3 favorite over Paragould, Ark., by a 28-14 score.

Sikeston is a 6-5 underdog at home against Fairley High of Memphis, Tenn. The southern visitors are undefeated and are picked by a 21-6 score. But I personally feel otherwise.

The Malden Green Waves are 7-4 picks over Caruthersville. Coach Jack Phillips' crew is young and inexperienced, but seems to have recovered sufficiently from two opening defeats and will be a deciding factor in the Southern race ... They'll start their drive toward that goal with Friday's 28-13 win.

Scott City is a unanimous choice of the panel to win, but I differ with the group's thoughts ... This is old Swami's upset pick of the week ... Chaffee 21-20.

Coach Clyde Vaughn's Dexter Bearcats are narrow favorites to end Hayti's unbeaten season ... The panel is divided at 5-5, but I gave the Cats the nod ... DHS 28-26.

Portageville is a solid 9-1 favorite, with one panel member selecting a tie with East Prairie. The Bulldogs were sluggish last week, but will prevail with a sharper offense. PHS 21-13.

Gosnell, Ark., is a 9-2 favorite to keep Gideon in the loss column. The Bulldogs are 28-13 underdogs.

Doniphan is a narrow favorite to defeat Willow Springs ... The panel ended in a 5-5 deadlock with the old Swami casting the deciding vote again ... DHS 26-19.

Join with us again next week, when the fearless panel of guessers try again to give you a keen insight into Southeast Missouri high school football.

3,300 Watch Birds

ST. LOUIS (AP) — General manager Bing Devine of the St. Louis Cardinals says the National League club stands to lose at least $600,000 from a drop in attendance during the 1972 baseball season.

"We won't know until we get an accounting and can make some kind of statement," Devine said Wednesday, "but based on what the break-even figure at the gate is, it's not too hard to make an estimate."

A late start in April due to the Baseball Players Association strikel the Cards' poor performance in May and failure to contend for the NL's East Division title contributed to the drop in attendance to 1,196,714, Devine said.

Describing 1.5 million as the figure needed to break even, he noted the club lost four home dates due to the player strike at the outset of the season and was down 100,000 in season ticket sales.

The Cards, who experimented with rookies during the final month of the season, drew a six-year attendance low of 3,300 for Wednesday's home finale against the New York Mets.

Their attendance for the season was the lowest since moving to their downtown stadium in 1967. Last year's attendance mark was 1,604,671.

Aaron Hits 672rd HR

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hank Aaron just goes on and on while Johnny Bench goes in streaks. But no matter which way they go, they're both quite satisfied with this season, thank you.

"I'd like to hit a few more home runs this year," Aaron said Wednesday night after slugging his 33rd of the season and 672nd of his career in Atlanta's 8-5 victory over Cincinnati.

"But I'll be satisfied if I get 35 this year," Bad Henry added. "It'll leave me 40 to tie." And his manager, Eddie Mathews, has no doubt Aaron will surpass Babe Ruth's alltime homer record of 714.

"Hank just goes on and on," the Braves' field general said. "It's just a matter of time with him. He'll do it. He's really something else, isn't he?"

Bench has been something else this season. For one thing, he's bunched his homers in spurts. "I'm a streak hitter," he said. "I have seven homers in the last seven games I've played and I hit seven in five games earlier this year.

"This season, in some ways, has been more satisfying than 1970," he added. Two years ago he won Most Valuable Player honors with his 45 homers and 148 runs batted in, both tops in the National League. In 1971 he sagged to just 27 homers and 61 RBI.

"A lot of people were saying after my bad year last year that 1970 was a fluke for me." Bench has very convincingly disproved that notion. He hit his 40th homer to drive in his 122nd run—both tops in the majors—in the Reds' losing cause against the Braves.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 3-1, St. Louis silenced the New York Mets 4-0, the Chicago Cubs clubbed Montreal 8-0, Houston beat San Francisco 3-0 and Los Angeles stopped San Diego 2-0.

In the American League, Boston beat Milwaukee 7-5, Cleveland blanked Baltimore 3-0, California tamed Texas 3-1, Kansas City whipped the Chicago White Sox 4-2, Detroit nipped the New York Yankees 6-5 and, in a twinight doubleheader, Oakland swept Minnesota 1-0 in 11 innings and 2-1 in 10.

"I'm not thinking 'homer' every time I go up to the plate," Aaron said after Atlanta's triumph. "I'm just trying to meet the ball and I figure the homers will take care of themselves."

Aaron hit his homer in the first inning but Bench's shot triggered a three-run rally that put the Reds on top after two. After six innings, though, the score was 4-4.

So in the seventh, Aaron just met the ball, hitting a tiebreaking single to start a three-run uprising that gave the Braves the margin of victory. In all, Atlanta battered three Cincinnati pitchers for 16 hits.

"Sometimes," Dave Cash of the Pirates said, "you have to play with a little pain." But what he did was anything but painful as far as Pittsburgh was concerned.

Cash had broken the thumb on his throwing hand on Labor Day. On Wednesday night, just 23 days later, he was back in the Bucs' lineup. And, despite the injury, he swatted a pair of hits against the Phillies, one of them a tie-breaking double in the fifth inning that paved the way to victory.

Although the fracture hasn't fully healed, Cash is more concerned about the upcoming championship playoffs with the Reds. "My timing is off," he said. "I'm out in front of ball. It'll take about six or seven more games. I don't worry about hitting. That comes natural."

But when someone asked Bill Virdon if Cash has to prove anything in order to regain his starting job at second base, the Pirates' manager replied: "He doesn't have to prove anything to me. I know he can play." Rennie Stennett had the job while Cash was sidelined.

The mound was a nice place to be as far as Al Santorini, Don Wilson, Rick Reuschel and Don Sutton were concerned.

The official should:

1. Award Rutgers a touchdown.

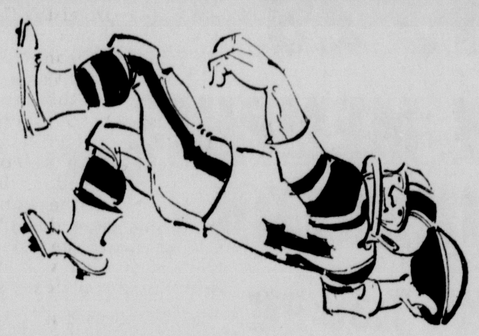
2. Declare a touchback.

3. Penalize Colgate from the spot of the foul for illegally batting the ball and award Rutgers a safety.

Answer: Number 1. Award Rutgers a touchdown.

Rule: (6-3-3) When a scrimmage kick which has crossed the neutral zone touches a player of the receiving team who is in bounds, any player may catch or recover the ball.

Rule: (8-2-1) A touchdown shall be scored when a player is legally in possession of the ball while any part of it is on, above, or behind his opponents' goal line.



3-Games...Birds Are Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Are the Orioles an extinct bird: Could be—in the American League East pennant race.

After a critical 3-0 loss to the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night, the defending American League champion Baltimore Orioles might be a dying breed in 1972.

"That doesn't eliminate us mathematically," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, "but ... "

Weaver left the sentence hanging, which is just about where the Orioles are right now. Baltimore has fallen 3½ games in back of the front-running Boston Red Sox and it appears that only a miracle finish could give them a fourth straight Eastern Division pennant.

"I can't figure out all the combinations it would take for us to win, but I imagine there are some," added Weaver.

This is the pitch, Earl:

Any combination of three victories by Boston or losses by Baltimore will eliminate the Orioles from contention. The same goes for the New York Yankees, who also fell 3½ behind by losing to the secondplace Detroit Tigers 6-5 Wednesday night.

The Red Sox continued to rule the East by a half-game after defeating the Milwaukee Brewers 7-5.

In the West, the Oakland A's moved closer to the title by winning a doubleheader from the Minnesota Twins, 1-0 in 11 innings and 2-1 in 10. The Chicago White Sox dropped to the brink of elimination by losing a 4-2 decision to the Kansas City Royals. Elsewhere, the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 3-1.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 5, Philadelphia 1; Chicago 8, Montreal 0; Atlanta 8, Cincinnati 5; Houston 3, San Francisco 0; St. Louis 4, New York 0, and Los Angeles 2, San Diego 0.

Gaylord Perry, who's been accused on occasion of throwing a wet ball, didn't let a 90-minute rain delay bother him as he pitched a seven-hitter over the Orioles.

"There's no doubt that Perry throws a strange pitch," said Weaver of Perry's alleged spitter.

Perry, who won his 23rd game, allowed three of Baltimore's hits in the opening inning but pitched out of trouble with the help of a double play. The veteran righthander was equally effective after that rain delay in the sixth inning.

The Indians scored all their runs off Oriole southpaw Dave McNally in the first inning.

Chris Chambliss hit a two-run triple and then scored on a single by Ray Fosse. McNally then departed the scene without retiring a batter.

Duke Sims delivered a tiebreaking single in the last of the ninth to cap a two-run rally as the Tigers whipped New York and dealt a serious blow to the Yankees' title chances. The loser was reliever Sparky Lyle, the Yankees' Most Valuable Pitcher with 35 saves.

The Tigers scored five runs in the last two innings to come back from an early 5-0 deficit. New York had taken that big lead in the first two innings on a three-run homer by Johnny Callison in the first and a tworun single by Bobby Murcer in the second.

Reggie Smith doubled home two runs, Luis Aparicio tripled home a pair and Bill Lee turned in a clutch relief job to lead Boston over Milwaukee.

"All we have to do is win every ball game and we have no worries," said the 38-year-old Aparicio, his eyes sparkling like a rookie.

"This is one I felt we had to win," said Boston Manager Eddie Kasko.

Sal Bando delivered both game-winning hits to pace Oakland over Minnesota. In the first game, he singled to drive in the winning run in the 11th inning and in the second game, his run-scoring hit produced the game-winner in the 10th.

John Mayberry slammed a two-run homer in the first and scored after his third-inning trile to power Kansas City past Chicago. White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner was obviously distraught.

"We're really a long shot now," he said, quietly.

Vada Pinson's double in the third inning drove home Sandy Alomar with the winning run and Clyde Wright pitched a sixhitter as California beat Texas.

WHY SEARCH FOR BARGAINS—THE BEST VALUES ARE RIGHT HERE

grid quiz

by Dave Nelson, executive secretary
NCAA Football Rules Committee

The official should:

1. Award Rutgers a touchdown.
2. Declare a touchback.
3. Penalize Colgate from the spot of the foul for illegally batting the ball and award Rutgers a safety.

Answer: Number 1. Award Rutgers a touchdown.

Rule: (6-3-3) When a scrimmage kick which has crossed the neutral zone touches a player of the receiving team who is in bounds, any player may catch or recover the ball.

Rule: (8-2-1) A touchdown shall be scored when a player is legally in possession of the ball while any part of it is on, above, or behind his opponents' goal line.

3-Games...Birds Are Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Are the Orioles an extinct bird: Could be—in the American League East pennant race.

After a critical 3-0 loss to the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night, the defending American League champion Baltimore Orioles might be a dying breed in 1972.

"That doesn't eliminate us mathematically," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, "but ..."

Weaver left the sentence hanging, which is just about where the Orioles are right now. Baltimore has fallen 3½ games in back of the front-running Boston Red Sox and it appears that only a miracle finish could give them a fourth straight Eastern Division pennant.

"I can't figure out all the combinations it would take for us to win, but I imagine there are some," added Weaver.

This is the pitch, Earl:

Any combination of three victories by Boston or losses by Baltimore will eliminate the Orioles from contention. The same goes for the New York Yankees, who also fell 3½ behind by losing to the secondplace Detroit Tigers 6-5 Wednesday night.

The Red Sox continued to rule the East by a half-game after defeating the Milwaukee Brewers 7-5.

In the West, the Oakland A's moved closer to the title by winning a doubleheader from the Minnesota Twins, 1-0 in 11 innings and 2-1 in 10. The Chicago White Sox dropped to the brink of elimination by losing a 4-2 decision to the Kansas City Royals. Elsewhere, the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 3-1.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 5, Philadelphia 1; Chicago 8, Montreal 0; Atlanta 8, Cincinnati 5; Houston 3, San Francisco 0; St. Louis 4, New York 0, and Los Angeles 2, San Diego 0.

Gaylord Perry, who's been accused on occasion of throwing a wet ball, didn't let a 90-minute rain delay bother him as he pitched a seven-hitter over the Orioles.

"There's no doubt that Perry throws a strange pitch," said Weaver of Perry's alleged spitter.

Perry, who won his 23rd game, allowed three of Baltimore's hits in the opening inning but pitched out of trouble with the help of a double play. The veteran righthander was equally effective after that rain delay in the sixth inning.

The Indians scored all their runs off Oriole southpaw Dave McNally in the first inning.

Chris Chambliss hit a two-run triple and then scored on a single by Ray Fosse. McNally then departed the scene without retiring a batter.

Duke Sims delivered a tiebreaking single in the last of the ninth to cap a two-run rally as the Tigers whipped New York and dealt a serious blow to the Yankees' title chances. The loser was reliever Sparky Lyle, the Yankees' Most Valuable Pitcher with 35 saves.

The Tigers scored five runs in the last two innings to come back from an early 5-0 deficit. New York had taken that big lead in the first two innings on a three-run homer by Johnny Callison in the first and a tworun single by Bobby Murcer in the second.

Reggie Smith doubled home two runs, Luis Aparicio tripled home a pair and Bill Lee turned in a clutch relief job to lead Boston over Milwaukee.

"All we have to do is win every ball game and we have no worries," said the 38-year-old Aparicio, his eyes sparkling like a rookie.

"This is one I felt we had to win," said Boston Manager Eddie Kasko.

Sal Bando delivered both game-winning hits to pace Oakland over Minnesota. In the first game, he singled to drive in the winning run in the 11th inning and in the second game, his run-scoring hit produced the game-winner in the 10th.

John Mayberry slammed a two-run homer in the first and scored after his third-inning trile to power Kansas City past Chicago. White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner was obviously distraught.

"We're really a long shot now," he said, quietly.

Vada Pinson's double in the third inning drove home Sandy Alomar with the winning run and Clyde Wright pitched a sixhitter as California beat Texas.

Citizens Entitled To Tax Refund On Soda Bottles

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — When you return your pop bottles to get a refund on the deposit, you're also entitled toa refund of the sales tax, says an attorney general's opinion.

But the tax refund is only for the amount of tax paid on the bottle itself and not on the beverage, the opinion said Tuesday.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Peter H. Ruger said that ownership of the bottle passes to the buyer, who "has the option to hold, destroy or return the beverage containers."

"If the purchaser chooses to return them, he or she is, in effect, exercising an option or accepting the outstanding offer granted by the vendor to permit the purchaser to return the tangible personal property," Ruger said.

The sales tax is three cents on the dollar. The state Revenue Department had directed retailers not to return the sales tax with the deposit.

State Rep. Donald J. Gralike, D-St. Louis, had requested the opinion.

Antagonist Beads To Be Tested On Addicts

WASHINGTON — The drug addict in the future may be injected with tiny plastic beads which destroy the effects of narcotics for weeks.

The beads contain "narcotic antagonists" which block the high from drug use. They are the focus of a crash research program by the federal government.

The National Institute of Mental Health has nine antagonist research programs totaling more than $2 million -- including a $230,000 contract with the University of Missouri at St. Louis.

The proponents of the program argue that once an addict stops receiving pleasure from drug use, the addict will eventually abstain from its use, Dr. Stephen Szara, clinical studies director of the NIMH's Center for Narcotic Drug Abuse, said.

"After several cases of heroin injection without a high, the addict is expected to stop," Dr. Szara said. "The addict is no longer reinforced to use drugs by their pleasant effects."

Cyclazocine and naloxone have received approval for use in controlled clinical experiments. These and related chemicals could go into general use within a few years.

In use, the antagonists would be supplemented by other psychological and physiological therapies. In a research study at Yale University, the addicts will receive methadone treatment -- a widely used medication to lessen the withdrawal symptoms -- until they have physically adjusted to not using drugs. Then, the antagonist treatment will be administered for six months or longer.

In conjunction with psychotherapy, the addict is expected to lose any need to use narcotics. Even if the addict does give in to a desire to use narcotics, he will receive no rewarding "high."

The antagonist treatments cannot be abused like other procedures. Long- term use of methodone has been criticized as merely substituting one addicting drug for another.

A major problem with antagonists is their short- lived nature. Cyclazocine will block the high for 24 hours. And naloxone lasts only 4 to 6 hours and must be injected into the patient.

Researchers are attempting to develop methods of giving patients large amounts of antagonists which gradually release doses for a week or more.

One time- release method involves combining antagonists with other chemicals to cause a very gradual release of the antagonist into the blood. In addition, some researchers have used a porous plastic bag implanted into the patient which gradually releases the antagonist.

This latter method necessitates surgical implantation and removal for each dose. Also, some addicts dig the bag out from under the skin so they can get a narcotic high.

A promising development involves a biodegradable polymer coating surrounding the antagonist. As the coating is gradually dissolved by body chemicals, the antagonist is released for a week or more.

The University of Missouri at St. Louis is testing the clinical use of cyclazocine. During the first six months, the project will treat 20 male volunteers over 18 years of age who have successfully completed a withdrawal program. Later, 30 more patients will undergo therapy. The project is administered by Dr. Sadashiv Parwartikar, the NIMH reports.

The antagonists are also considered a possible means of stopping infrequent users of narcotics from becoming addicts. Since even one- time use of narcotics can be detected by medical tests within 24 hours of the last use, the antagonist could be given to individuals who were on the road to addiction.

Dr. Szara cautions that only a small percentage of addicts may be helped by the antagonist treatment. Until further study is made, there are too many psychological and physical factors involved to say one chemical can be the complete solution, Dr. Szara said.

MU Announces New Vice Chancellor

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri-Columbia confirmed today that Dr. Walter C. Daniel, president of Lincoln University at Jefferson City, will become its vice chancellor.

The 50-year-old black educator will take over his new duties at Columbia on January 1.

In another realignment of jobs and titles on the Columbia campus, Dr. Clifton Cornwell was named provost for academic affairs until a new man can be found. Dr. Cornwell will return then to teaching and research in the speech and dramatics department. He has been dean of faculties for almost two years.

Dr. Daniel has been president of Lincoln University for about three years and is a nationally recognized administrator and scholar. His doctorate is from Bowling Green University in Ohio, where he also was an instructor. He was appointed president of Lincoln after serving as a teacher and administrator at North Carolina Central University and North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University.

His transfer to Columbia was anticipated when his resignation at Lincoln was announced recently.

Reporter Tells Of Horror For Foreigners In Uganda

Editor's Note — AP Correspondent Andrew Torchia arrived safely in England today after his release from detention in Uganda. Torchia, a Pennsylvanian who is based in Kenya, was seized last weekend soon after he arrived in Uganda. Here is his story.

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Uganda soldiers pinned a man on the ground while a woman beat him with a rawhide whip — 10, 20, 50 times — until he screamed and writhed and the blood ran.

Thirty other soldiers — officers and men — shouldered around to watch. They laughed, enjoying the spectacle, and no one intervened. The beating went on for minutes — forever, it seemed, before the crowd dispersed and the screaming stopped.

This scene of bizarre and casual cruelty Wednesday afternoon was for 13 British, Swedish, American and Canadian detainees — their last view of Makindye military prison. None of us knew who the woman was or what the whipping was about. We stood silently in the hot sun at the prison gate and tried not to look. Then guards handed back our shoes and money.

Most of us had spent three days in Makindye and now we were being released from captivity under the undisciplined army that has controlled Uganda for the past 20 months. Ten, including six British and two Swedish newsmen, were being deported on a night flight to London.

Three were freed in Kampala.

Many details of what went on in Makindye cannot be told. Their disclosure could endanger others still imprisoned there without being charged and without hope of immediate release. One man has been inside more than a year.

Ugandan soldiers and detectives, swarming around Kampala following a reported invasion Sunday from Tanzania, detained 150 or more Asians and whites, plus uncounted Africans suspected of disloyalty to President Idi Amin. As fear and suspicion mounted against whites and Asians, soldiers wielding submachine guns made arrests at a swimming pool and in a bedroom at midnight.

Many detainees were clubbed with rifle butts. Others were led from their cells and disappeared.

Troops trucked dozens of Uganda police into Makindye as prisoners—lending support to the belief that the fighting in southern Uganda resulted at least as much from tribal feuds within the country as from the guerrilla invasion Amin had announced.

Some prisoners slept on bare concrete floors, others had blankets or thin mattresses. Meals were skimpy — sweet tea and dry bread for breakfast, cold baked beans or biscuits for lunch, meat scraps and cold cornmeal for dinner.

At the central police station in Kampala, more than 50 white men, women and children were kept in one room. Babies' pants were hung on the window bars to dry and urine from adjoining cells ran on the floor. I was at the central police station only briefly, while being taken from my hotel to Makindye.

I was detained by three plainclothesmen during dinner Sunday night at a hilltop tourist hotel in Kampala. Where was my radio transmitter and where was my pistol, they asked, evidently expecting a spy.

I was made to strip while they searched my bed and riffled through photographs in my wallet.

I was never formally charged or told what wrongdoing was suspected. The offense seemed to be that I was a foreign newsman who could not accept uncritically official Kampala pronouncements on the fighting.

Eight soldiers guarded me, their only prisoner, on the ride to Makindye in the back of an open truck. When I was slow clambering down, a soldier barked, "Get down quick like a man, not like a woman."

Makindye, on a hill four miles from Kampala, is a collection of one-story buildings behind a double fence of barbed wire. Cows and chickens roam the grounds. Soldiers lie idly on the grass, cleaning their weapons.

Our building held up to 18 prisoners in seven 10x7 cells which were airy and clean, unlike the dank rooms at the central police station.

There were three Asian traders whose ivory exports had been blocked by the military. A young Tanzanian army deserter was taken from his cell one day and did not return. Two Africans led twice-daily Roman Catholic prayer services for the Christian, Hindu and Moslem inmates.

Lionel, a British tea-taster, asked if he could telephone the managing director of his firm. He couldn't. Two Africans were beaten until they couldn't stand, covered with blankets and carried away, perhaps already dead.

Ismail, Ghanaian chairman of a shipping line, had entered Uganda to help organize transport for Asians being expelled by Amin. He claimed it was a case of mistaken identity.

Tony, a shy, bearded British student, was ill for two days after taking a rifle butt on the head.

And there was Manubhai Madhavani, 43-year-old Asian head of Uganda's biggest industrial combine, estimated at more than $100 million in value. Madhavani Enterprises employ more than 15,000 persons and manufacture 19 products, from steel to sugar. Madhavani, in prison more than two weeks but not formally charged, could lose it all in the Asian exodus.

Madhavani, always cheerful and dignified, calmed new arrivals. The morale of the whole cell block came to depend on him.

"Come in and sit down, don't be formal," he would say, patting the floor of his cell. The walls, scarred with mottos carved by former prisoners, seemed more like home.

A prison day was an emotional roller-coaster. A harsh word from a guard began the day badly. A shred of news that the fighting had stopped raised hope for release.

A dozen vultures waiting outside for food scraps added to the gloom. Soldiers began digging holes outside the door. Trenches or graves? Inexplicably, a small storeroom had a badminton set. Games in the corridor, playing carom shots off the cell bars, eased the boredom.

So did walking. The block was 24 paces long, and 100 lengths or so made a mile. Wednesday a tall plain-clothesman led us out of Makindye and into two cars bound for the airport. He allowed a beer stop at a Kampala hotel. We bought him one.

Book Tells How To Avoid Being Taken On Car Repairs

NEW YORK (AP) — It's easy to be taken for a ride when trying to ge your car fixed, a Senate investigator says. But, he adds, there are dozens of ways to avoid the trip.

They range from giving your favorite mechanic a Christmas gift to picketing the repair shop which you think may have cheated you.

Donald A. Randall, counsel to the Senate subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly, is co-author of a new book which outlines how-to instructions on car repair.

The instructions include questions a motorist should ask when he brings his car in, ways to check that the car has been fixed correctly and ways to complain when it hasn't.

"The Great American Auto Repair Robbery" was written after a four-year subcommittee investigation of the auto repair industry, directed and organized by Randall. His co-author is Arthur P. Glickman, former reporter for the Wall Street Journal.

"If you haven't been gypped by an auto repair shop, it's probabr because you'mtever driven a car," the authors say.

During the Senate investigation, Sen. Philip Harr, D-Mich., estimated that the American public was being cheated out of $8-$10 billion a year on car repairs.

"The auto repair industry is just slightly more advanced than it was in the Modl-A era," Randall said in an interview.

The authors say many car repair problems can be blamed on the auto manufacturers, through their failure to train and enlist competent mechanics, warranties that often prove worthless and production of cars which can be damaged easily but are not so easily prepared.

Other problems, they say, stem from the pressure which insurance companies put on repair shops to fix cars as cheaply as possible, often resulting in slipshod work.

With all these pitfalls, how can you insure that your car will be repaired efficiently and correctly?

The best way, the authors say, is to find a mechanic whom you can trust—not an easy task because of a critical shortage of good mechanics and the virtual lack of training for those entering the trade.

"Ask every mechanic you deal with about his background and try to judge as best you can the quality of his work," they say. "Once you find a good mechanic, stick with him."

The authors add, "Tip the mechanic a few dollars once in a while and remember the mechanic and the service writer (who writes up repair orders in car dealerships) at Christmas time."

A major cause of skyrocketing auto repair costs, the authors say, is the use by most repair facilities of so-called flat rate manuals, which determine how long each type of repair job should take. Motorists are charged for the amount of time the manual says a repair job should last, not how much time actually is taken.

"In practice," the authors say, "a reasonably competent mechanic can beat the time in the independent flat-rate manuals, sometimes by 50 per cent."

They say mechanics usually are paid on a flat-rate basis, leading them to perform jobs as quickly as possible in order to make more money.

"If you must deal with a shop that uses the manual, at least choose one that pays its mechanics a straight salary or a salary plus proficiency pay," the authors say.

Other suggestions are:

—Don't take your car to be repaired during peak work periods, particularly mornings, when service writers and mechanics, are rushed.

—Make sure you describe to the mechanic the symptoms your car is exhibiting. Don't just talk with the service writer.

—Request a copy of the repair order before repairs are made to prevent anyone from adding unnecessary repairs after you've signed the order.

—To insure that your car has been repaired properly, demand a road test and perhaps take your car to an auto diagnostic center to be checked.

Trying to get repairs for a car under warranty is possibly the thorniest of all auto repair problems because it's not profitable for auto dealers, the authors say.

A good way to avoid warranty problems is to get all the "bugs" out of the car before you take possession.

The authors suggest that you:

—Have the dealer state in writing that all the items on the manufacturer's pre-delivery inspection list will be performed.

—Insist that before you take possession, you be allowed to road test the car and have it examined by a mechanic of your choice or at a diagnostic clinic.

—Buy as few power options, like air conditioning, as possible because they put stress on the motor and battery, reduce gas mileage and often break down.

If you feel you have been gypped and you don't get satisfaction from you auto repair shop, complain loudly and persistently to auto company executives, the appropriate federal and state government agencies, newspaper "action lines" and the Better Business Bureau, the authors say. If nothing else works, think about hiring a lawyer and going to court.

Need Only Half Of School Areas

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A committee of 108 citizens studying Missouri's school financing system has recommended that the state's 605 school districts be consolidated into less than half that total.

The group, appointed last spring, also has recommended that property tax continue to be the principal means of financing elementary and secondary education.

Dr. Loran G. Townsend and Delmar Cobble, study co-directors, said the recommendations were only tentative.

They will be presented t the public in a series of hearings on this schedule:

Mountain Grove Oct. 4, Aurora Oct. 5, Creve Coeur (Parkway North High) Oct. 10, Flat River Oct. 11, St. Louis (Harris Teachers College) Oct. 12, Kansas City Oct. 18, Raytown Oct. 19, Clinton Oct. 20, Salisbury Oct. 27, Maryville Nov. 6, Mexico Nov. 8, Sikeston Nov. 17, and Eldon Nov. 21.

The Mexico, Creve Coeur, St. Louis, Kansas City and Raytown meetings will be at night.

Eagleton Critizes Army Death Report

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., has criticized an Army report on the death of a Ft. Leonard Wood trainee for omitting certain facts.

The senator's office here said today a letter was sent to Army Secretary Robert Froehlke calling attention to testimony offered by witnesses in an investigation into the death of Pvt. Stephen P. Gasser, 18, of Madison, Wis. He died Aug. 4, the day after collasping during a forced march at the Army base in southern Missouri.

Eagleton did not ask for a further inquiry in the case, but pointed out to Froehlke the additional information and asked him to apprise him of "any suggestions you may have as to how training deaths can be avoided in the future."

Gasser was among 15 trainees who fell out of the march. Five were treated at the base hospital for heat exhaustion. Eagleton said the Army report of the incident left the impression that the soldier's death "was an unfortunate quirk of fate. I have concluded, however, that the march and accumulated strain of the bivouac offered sufficient stress to severely debilitate individuals subjected to that stress."

Eagleton said the Army report failed to mention that the officer in charge of the march, Lt. Robert Reuter, had gone home for a shower and lunch before leading the men on the afternoon march.

Other testimony that should have been included, Eagleton said, was that the men had little or no sleep the night before, that there was no water on the truck following the line of march and that the water given the men earlier contained no salt, although it was recommended procedure.

Reporter Tells Of Horror For Foreigners In Uganda

Editor's Note — AP Correspondent Andrew Torchia arrived safely in England today after his release from detention in Uganda. Torchia, a Pennsylvanian who is based in Kenya, was seized last weekend soon after he arrived in Uganda. Here is his story.

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Uganda soldiers pinned a man on the ground while a woman beat him with a rawhide whip — 10, 20, 50 times — until he screamed and writhed and the blood ran.

Thirty other soldiers — officers and men — shouldered around to watch. They laughed, enjoying the spectacle, and no one intervened. The beating went on for minutes — forever, it seemed, before the crowd dispersed and the screaming stopped.

This scene of bizarre and casual cruelty Wednesday afternoon was for 13 British, Swedish, American and Canadian detainees — their last view of Makindye military prison. None of us knew who the woman was or what the whipping was about. We stood silently in the hot sun at the prison gate and tried not to look. Then guards handed back our shoes and money.

Most of us had spent three days in Makindye and now we were being released from captivity under the undisciplined army that has controlled Uganda for the past 20 months. Ten, including six British and two Swedish newsmen, were being deported on a night flight to London.

Three were freed in Kampala.

Many details of what went on in Makindye cannot be told. Their disclosure could endanger others still imprisoned there without being charged and without hope of immediate release. One man has been inside more than a year.

Ugandan soldiers and detectives, swarming around Kampala following a reported invasion Sunday from Tanzania, detained 150 or more Asians and whites, plus uncounted Africans suspected of disloyalty to President Idi Amin. WW II Study Reveals Big Hitler Hang-Ups

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — A Freudian scholar assigned a World War II task of compiling a top secret study of the mind of Adolf Hitler concluded in 1943 that the German dictator was "in all probability a neurotic psychopath."

Hitler was intrigued by wolves but feared horses, moonlight and microbes, Dr. Walter C. Langer told the Allied High Command in his "The Hitler Source Book."

The German dictator wept over the death of his canary and pondered the most humane way to cook a lobster. In moments of agitation, he sucked his little finger and was given to temper tantrums, sometimes rolling on the floor and chewing the carpet, the study said.

Masochism was the basis of his sex life, Langer concluded.

After 29 years as classified material, Langer's psychological study of Hitler has been placed in the National Archives and published as the main part of a new book, "The Mind of Adolph Hitler."

Langer, a 73-year-old retired Boston psychoanalyst who has been living in Sarasota, Fla., since 1961, was commissioned by the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) in 1943 to probe Hitler's psyche.

Using Sigmund Freud's psychoanalytic techniques of exploring behavior patterns, Langer talked to available persons who had known the German leader more or less intimately, sifted through newspaper and magazine reports, and read and reread "Mein Kampf" for clues to his subject's subconscious. Eight months and 1,200 single-spaced typewritten pages later, he turned over the source book to OSS chief Col. William (Wild Bill) Donovan.

Langer had been chosen for the job after he wrote Donovan a letter citing the need for such a study.

In the introduction to his new book, Langer wrote:

"Psychological warfare, it seemed to me, should be much more than a constant repetition of fabricated atrocity stories which are designed to prove that the enemy were all 'bad guys' who had to be eliminated so we 'good guys' could live in peace."

Langer studied under Freud's daughter, Dr. Anna Freud, in Vienna from 1937-39 and saw Hitler take over Austria. He said:

"I had never met him but had seen him several times and heard many of his speeches and I couldn't have been less impressed with anyone.

"Because Hitler hated Jews and analysts with equal fervor," Langer said, he was among those who persuaded the Freuds to leave Austria and he accompanied the 80-year-old genius and his family on the train trip to the border. Langer was an American citizen.

Langer saw Hitler as an insecure weakling who somehow managed to convey a superman image to the German people.

"It was this ability to convince others that he is what he is not that kept him from going insane," he wrote in his 1943 analysis.

Now is the time for a drive in the country to pick up a couple jugs of cider trucked out from the city.

My husband and baby son (9 months) and I are presently visiting my sister, Mrs. D. Freeman, here in Sikeston. We have just returned from a 2½ year stay in Australia and came to Missouri to see my family.

This past Wednesday (Sept. 20, 1972) my son became ill and started running a temperature. I called the Ferguson Clinic and tried to make an appointment with one of the doctors there (explaining to the receptionist that we were visitors from out of town etc.). This particular doctor had briefly seen my son Saturday past and did say should I have any problems please call him.

I was told that that doctor was not there (which I later found to be untrue) and that neither of the other two doctors could see my son as he was not a "regular" at the clinic ... that the only way I could receive medical attention was to take the baby to the emergency section of the local hospital.

My husband took us to the hospital where we were told the doctor on duty would not attend babies. We did not get medical attention there, however, one of the nurses called the Ferguson Clinic and made an appointment for 2:30 with the doctor I had originally asked for.

We were at the clinic at 2:30 and at 4:15 I complained to the receptionist that people with later appointments were going before us. I was told that I did not really have an appointment ... that the baby would have to be "worked in" as we were not "regulars" at the clinic.

I must say I rather rudely told the receptionist that I had a sick baby with a fever and wasn't really prepared to have him "worked in". I was told he and I could have a room as soon as one was available. We received the room but sat in there for another full hour before a doctor (not the one I wanted) saw my son.

Had the nurse at the hospital not called the clinic I wouldn't have had the so called appointment. I find it absolutely shocking that a doctor should refuse to see a patient (as happened at the hosp.) and I also find it unbelievable the treatment we received ((I should say did not receive) because we weren't "regulars."

What kind of attitude prevails with Sikeston doctors? I didn't feel like an average mother concerned over a sick baby but rather a person who didn't belong to the correct country club.

I strongly feel that this situation in this town should be closely reviewed. I fully understand that the doctors are overloaded but how can they refuse patients unless pushed; (by the nurse at the hosp, who got us the "appointment") But further — if you are sent to the emergency ward for medical attention ... how in the world can you be turned away because the doctor on duty doesn't see babies?

Thank you for your attention to this letter.

We are leaving Sikeston for a few days to visit in Cape Girardeau but will be back in Sikeston this Monday or Tuesday following;

Travels 15,000 Miles At Home

IRONTON, Mich. (AP) — There are two ways to get from one side of Lake Charlevoix to the other in this rustic corner of Michigan—the long way and the slow way.

The long way is an 18-mile trip around the south arm of the lake.

The slow way is the Ironton ferry, a ride of a few minutes on a 45-year-old waterborne cable car that carries cars and pickup trucks across a 550-foot channel for 50 cents a ride, 75 cents with trailer.

On a busy summer day the ferry may make 50 crossings, pulled by steel cables at the same steady pace each time.

And residents, accustomed to the ferry's slow ways for generations now, seem to like it that way.

Sam Alexander, who captained the ferry for 21 years, was mentioned in "Ripley's Believe It Or Not" for the distinction of having traveled over 15,000 miles without ever being more than 1,000 feet from his home on the west shore.

Beef Prices Stay High At Stores As Cattle Costs Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government report today showed that supermarkets widened the beef-price gap between farmers and consumers to a record margin in August, thus failing to pass along to housewives recent declines in cattle prices.

The widening farm-to-consumer meat-price spread, subject of White House armtwisting of retailers earlier this month, was shown in a "market basket" report issued by the Agriculture Department.

In August, the report said, the average retail price of beef dropped 1.5 cents per pound from a record high in July of more than $1.17 per pound to slightly less than $1.16.

But while cattle producers saw their share drop 8.4 per cent in August, middlemen representing packing plants and retail stores widened their margins 12.6 per cent.

Broken down, a pound of choice beef—a major indicator for family food spending—had a "farm value" in August of 71.0 cents per pound when sold in supermarkets. That compared with 77.5 cents in July.

That figure is not what cattle producers get for live animals, since it takes nearly 2.3 pounds of steer on the hoof to make one pound of supermarket beef. But the figure does represent a producer's share of what the housewife spends at meat counters.

Today's report showed the total cost of a market-basket food list—theoretically enough to feed a typical family for a year—actually declined slightly in August from the record $1,322 peak in July.

The $1 decline was attributed mainly to the lower retail prices for beef and poultry. Slightly higher prices were reported for several items, including pork, which has been at record highs both on the farm and at meat counters.

The $1,321 index was 4.5 per cent higher than a year ago.

Meantime, the total spread between the "Farm Value" and the retail price increased to a record high of 44.8 cents per pound for retail beef in August, from 39.8 cents in July.

Broken down further, the farm-to-housewife beef spread showed the retailer's margin was another record of 37.3 cents per pound in August, compared with 33.0 cents in July.

The farm-to-carcass spread, or wholesale share, in August was 7.5 cents, up from 6.8 cents in July. Earlier this year, however, the carcass spread was higher, reported at 8.1 cents last May.

Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, told food retailers in August that the wholesale price of beef began to decline in July and that the council "expected to see a corresponding reduction" in supermarkets. Rumsfeld repeated the expectation on Sept. 7 and said government reviews would be started to monitor beef prices in major food chains.

Although today's USDA figures showed that food costs dropped slightly in August, last week the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported retail grocery prices during the month rose 0.2 per cent.

The USDA report indicated that the difference between the two indexes is due mainly to lower prices for beef during the latter part of August.

WW II Study Reveals Big Hitler Hang-Ups

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — A Freudian scholar assigned a World War II task of compiling a top secret study of the mind of Adolf Hitler concluded in 1943 that the German dictator was "in all probability a neurotic psychopath."

Hitler was intrigued by wolves but feared horses, moonlight and microbes, Dr. Walter C. Langer told the Allied High Command in his "The Hitler Source Book."

The German dictator wept over the death of his canary and pondered the most humane way to cook a lobster. In moments of agitation, he sucked his little finger and was given to temper tantrums, sometimes rolling on the floor and chewing the carpet, the study said.

Masochism was the basis of his sex life, Langer concluded.

After 29 years as classified material, Langer's psychological study of Hitler has been placed in the National Archives and published as the main part of a new book, "The Mind of Adolph Hitler."

Langer, a 73-year-old retired Boston psychoanalyst who has been living in Sarasota, Fla., since 1961, was commissioned by the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) in 1943 to probe Hitler's psyche.

Using Sigmund Freud's psychoanalytic techniques of exploring behavior patterns, Langer talked to available persons who had known the German leader more or less intimately, sifted through newspaper and magazine reports, and read and reread "Mein Kampf" for clues to his subject's subconscious. Eight months and 1,200 single-spaced typewritten pages later, he turned over the source book to OSS chief Col. William (Wild Bill) Donovan.

Langer had been chosen for the job after he wrote Donovan a letter citing the need for such a study.

In the introduction to his new book, Langer wrote:

"Psychological warfare, it seemed to me, should be much more than a constant repetition of fabricated atrocity stories which are designed to prove that the enemy were all 'bad guys' who had to be eliminated so we 'good guys' could live in peace."

Langer studied under Freud's daughter, Dr. Anna Freud, in Vienna from 1937-39 and saw Hitler take over Austria. He said:

"I had never met him but had seen him several times and heard many of his speeches and I couldn't have been less impressed with anyone.

"Because Hitler hated Jews and analysts with equal fervor," Langer said, he was among those who persuaded the Freuds to leave Austria and he accompanied the 80-year-old genius and his family on the train trip to the border. Langer was an American citizen.

Langer saw Hitler as an insecure weakling who somehow managed to convey a superman image to the German people.

"It was this ability to convince others that he is what he is not that kept him from going insane," he wrote in his 1943 analysis.

Now is the time for a drive in the country to pick up a couple jugs of cider trucked out from the city.

Radio's 'Andy' Dead

CHICAGO (AP) — "Howdy Amos ... Howdy Andy" — for 32 years those familiar words opened a radio show that captivated millions of Americans.

For addicts of the "Amos and Andy Show," there were also the Kingfish, and Sapphire and Madam Queen. And there were the Beauty Parlor and the Fresh Air Taxicab Co.

But it was the Negro dialect of two white men, Charles Correll and Freeman Gosden, which drew Americans to their sets week in and week out after the show went on network radio in 1929.

On Tuesday, the deep voice of Correll was silenced by death. Four days after he entered Chicago's Wesley Memorial Hospital in the wake of a heart attack, Correll died. He was 82.

Born in Peoria, Ill., Correll retired in 1960 and lived in Beverly Hills, Calif., a few blocks from Gosden, now 67.

Correll and Gosden met in 1919 as fellow members of an amateur theatrical group touring the South.

They formed a two-man team and toured tent shows in the South, sometimes singing duets.

In 1926, Correl and Gosden started a blackface minstrel show on Chicago's WGN which they called "Sam 'n' Henry."

When they changed stations in 1928 they had to find a new name for their act because of the WGN contract.

On an elevator ride to their first broadcast they overheard a man greet two other men as "Handy Andy" and "Famous Amos." Their search for a new name ended.

The show went coast-to-coast on Aug. 18, 1929, and the Amos and Andy Show soon became the most popular in the country.

Restaurants frequently boosted the volume of their radio sets when the show came on, to satisfy their customers. Motion pictures often were cut at midreel so audiences could tune in on the doings of Amos and Andy.

In 1960, with television taking more and more of the audience, Amos and Andy left the air.

Negro actors were chosen in 1950 to portray Amos and Andy in the television version of the radio show.

Correll is survived by his widow, Alyce, and four children.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

OK's TV Media Coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been slightly less than three years since Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's accusation that many network television reporters were biased against President Nixon.

On a special edition of "NBC Reports" Tuesday night, it appeared that the question of bias has shifted to one of fairness in this presidential election year.

This time the gripes didn't come from Agnew or another administration spokesmen; they came from Frank Mankiewicz, chief strategist for Sen. George McGovern's campaign.

Mankiewicz claimed that television coverage of the South Dakota Democrat had been unfair by being, among other things, overly anxious to get administration reaction to McGovern's campaign speeches.

On the same show, a top Nixon aide, William Safire, insisted the media in general "is trying to be straight and fair" in covering the campaign.

Other panelists offered their views, but the mini-debate between Safire and Mankiewicz was the real show.

Their skirmish left the impression that the GOP, for a change, is generally satisfied with media coverage of the campaign while the Democrats have grown extremely unhappy with the reporting of major newspapers and television networks.

The taped, two-part program was broadcast a day after McGovern charged that the administration has successfully intimidated the television networks in the field of broadcast journalism.

The show's second segment explored the question of whether media treatment of Sen. Thomas Eagleton's medical disclosures was fair or whether it unjustly forced McGovern to drop him as his running mate.

Eagleton was invited by NBC to appear on the program, but declined the offer. A close friend, former Sen. Joseph Tydings, D-Md., took up the cudgel for him.

Of the four panelists on this segment, the best summaries of opposing views were provided by Tydings and Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them, for the Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. (Deuteronomy 31:6)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, give us the courage to stand up for our convictions. We would be kept mindful of Thy Guidance and be courageous enough to follow Thy path of righteousness. Free our minds from clouds of doubt and uncertainty, and let us always walk with faith. Amen.

Fischer Joins Hope Special

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — World chess champion Bobby Fischer, who said cameras bothered his concentration in the title match he won against Russian Boris Spassky, will appear on Bob Hope's Oct. 5 television special, the National Broadcasting Co. has announced.

Fischer will join Olympic gold metalist Mark Spitz, singers Karen and Richard Carpenter, David Cassidy and "Follies" star Alexis Smith.

He will have a "light part," an NBC spokesman said Wednesday.

The chess champion is scheduled to tape his part Sunday.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Tongue- Tied Men

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

A group of middle -aged bucks decided to form a social club, FOR MEN ONLY, and then decided that it wouldn't be very social without women. Thus, they naively amended the bylaws of the organization so as to allow membership to women and men alike. It didn't take too long thereafter, however, that they realized their grievous error.

Although the men outnumbered the loquacious ladies 60 to 20, the men soon discovered that they couldn't get a word in sledgewise; that generally speaking, the women were generally speaking.

Tongue -tied and frustrated, the male members of the social club finally hit upon what they considered to be a rather simple solution to stabilize their problem and to prevent it from getting any worse. They simply voted as a bloc to stop further female membership.

"You old war -horses can't do that. It's discrimination," protested the ladies. "Since the bylaws provide for membership of both sexes, that's the way its gotta' stay."

"Not on your life," retorted the men as they mustered up their courage. "The bylaws also provide that they can be changed by a two -thirds vote. And since we constitute two -thirds, the change is perfectly legal. It's not discrimination. It's survival."

Full of dire ire, the outraged women stumped off to Court where they demanded that the action of the men in changing the bylaws be declared invalid.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE would you permit the tongue -tied men to change the bylaws so as to exclude women?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that the vote of the men was not only in accordance with the organization's bylaws, but it was in keeping with natural justice as well.

(Based upon a 1937 Springfield Missouri Court of Appeals Decision)

Housing Bill Cut By House Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crammed with enough provisions to anger liberals and conservatives at the same time, an omnibus housing bill has been shot down by the House Rules Committee.

By a 9-5 vote Wednesday, the committee refused to send the $10.5-billion legislation to the House floor and, in effect, killed its chance for passage during this session of Congress.

The bill would have provided funds for two years for a wide range of programs supervised by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, including most existing forms of public housing.

In addition, it would have provided $400 million to subsidize operations of city transit systems which now receive federal aid only for capital expenditures.

The Rules Committee turned down the bill as cleared by the House Banking Committee. So the banking panel planned a meeting today to determine whether there should be an effort to salvage the bill's most palatable portions, an unlikely choice because of the rush to adjourn by Oct. 14.

The committee is more likely to seek passage of a stop-gap bill continuing present housing programs at the current spending levels.

Throughout the process of molding the legislation, one group after another found something in the bill to criticize.

Civil-rights advocates objected to a provision giving local government authorities the right to veto low-income housing planned by private builders but subsidized by the government.

Critics argued that the clause would have strengthened the hand of suburbanites determined to exclude the poor and minorities from their neighborhoods.

Conservatives fought a provision which would have authorized a new program of direct government loans to buyers of low-income housing.

The now-dead bill also contained provisions designed to protect home buyers from abuse by lawyers, title companies and others involved in real-estate settlements. But critics said those provisions had been changed so much that they actually would have been weaker than existing regulations.

Radio's 'Andy' Dead

CHICAGO (AP) — "Howdy Amos ... Howdy Andy" — for 32 years those familiar words opened a radio show that captivated millions of Americans.

For addicts of the "Amos and Andy Show," there were also the Kingfish, and Sapphire and Madam Queen. And there were the Beauty Parlor and the Fresh Air Taxicab Co.

But it was the Negro dialect of two white men, Charles Correll and Freeman Gosden, which drew Americans to their sets week in and week out after the show went on network radio in 1929.

On Tuesday, the deep voice of Correll was silenced by death. Four days after he entered Chicago's Wesley Memorial Hospital in the wake of a heart attack, Correll died. He was 82.

Born in Peoria, Ill., Correll retired in 1960 and lived in Beverly Hills, Calif., a few blocks from Gosden, now 67.

Correll and Gosden met in 1919 as fellow members of an amateur theatrical group touring the South.

They formed a two-man team and toured tent shows in the South, sometimes singing duets.

In 1926, Correl and Gosden started a blackface minstrel show on Chicago's WGN which they called "Sam 'n' Henry."

When they changed stations in 1928 they had to find a new name for their act because of the WGN contract.

On an elevator ride to their first broadcast they overheard a man greet two other men as "Handy Andy" and "Famous Amos." Their search for a new name ended.

The show went coast-to-coast on Aug. 18, 1929, and the Amos and Andy Show soon became the most popular in the country.

Restaurants frequently boosted the volume of their radio sets when the show came on, to satisfy their customers. Motion pictures often were cut at midreel so audiences could tune in on the doings of Amos and Andy.

In 1960, with television taking more and more of the audience, Amos and Andy left the air.

Negro actors were chosen in 1950 to portray Amos and Andy in the television version of the radio show.

Correll is survived by his widow, Alyce, and four children.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

OK's TV Media Coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been slightly less than three years since Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's accusation that many network television reporters were biased against President Nixon.

On a special edition of "NBC Reports" Tuesday night, it appeared that the question of bias has shifted to one of fairness in this presidential election year.

This time the gripes didn't come from Agnew or another administration spokesmen; they came from Frank Mankiewicz, chief strategist for Sen. George McGovern's campaign.

Mankiewicz claimed that television coverage of the South Dakota Democrat had been unfair by being, among other things, overly anxious to get administration reaction to McGovern's campaign speeches.

On the same show, a top Nixon aide, William Safire, insisted the media in general "is trying to be straight and fair" in covering the campaign.

Other panelists offered their views, but the mini-debate between Safire and Mankiewicz was the real show.

Their skirmish left the impression that the GOP, for a change, is generally satisfied with media coverage of the campaign while the Democrats have grown extremely unhappy with the reporting of major newspapers and television networks.

The taped, two-part program was broadcast a day after McGovern charged that the administration has successfully intimidated the television networks in the field of broadcast journalism.

The show's second segment explored the question of whether media treatment of Sen. Thomas Eagleton's medical disclosures was fair or whether it unjustly forced McGovern to drop him as his running mate.

Eagleton was invited by NBC to appear on the program, but declined the offer. A close friend, former Sen. Joseph Tydings, D-Md., took up the cudgel for him.

Of the four panelists on this segment, the best summaries of opposing views were provided by Tydings and Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them, for the Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. (Deuteronomy 31:6)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, give us the courage to stand up for our convictions. We would be kept mindful of Thy Guidance and be courageous enough to follow Thy path of righteousness. Free our minds from clouds of doubt and uncertainty, and let us always walk with faith. Amen.

Fischer Joins Hope Special

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — World chess champion Bobby Fischer, who said cameras bothered his concentration in the title match he won against Russian Boris Spassky, will appear on Bob Hope's Oct. 5 television special, the National Broadcasting Co. has announced.

Fischer will join Olympic gold metalist Mark Spitz, singers Karen and Richard Carpenter, David Cassidy and "Follies" star Alexis Smith.

He will have a "light part," an NBC spokesman said Wednesday.

The chess champion is scheduled to tape his part Sunday.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Tongue- Tied Men

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

A group of middle -aged bucks decided to form a social club, FOR MEN ONLY, and then decided that it wouldn't be very social without women. Thus, they naively amended the bylaws of the organization so as to allow membership to women and men alike. It didn't take too long thereafter, however, that they realized their grievous error.

Although the men outnumbered the loquacious ladies 60 to 20, the men soon discovered that they couldn't get a word in sledgewise; that generally speaking, the women were generally speaking.

Tongue -tied and frustrated, the male members of the social club finally hit upon what they considered to be a rather simple solution to stabilize their problem and to prevent it from getting any worse. They simply voted as a bloc to stop further female membership.

"You old war -horses can't do that. It's discrimination," protested the ladies. "Since the bylaws provide for membership of both sexes, that's the way its gotta' stay."

"Not on your life," retorted the men as they mustered up their courage. "The bylaws also provide that they can be changed by a two -thirds vote. And since we constitute two -thirds, the change is perfectly legal. It's not discrimination. It's survival."

Full of dire ire, the outraged women stumped off to Court where they demanded that the action of the men in changing the bylaws be declared invalid.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE would you permit the tongue -tied men to change the bylaws so as to exclude women?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that the vote of the men was not only in accordance with the organization's bylaws, but it was in keeping with natural justice as well.

Housing Bill Cut By House Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crammed with enough provisions to anger liberals and conservatives at the same time, an omnibus housing bill has been shot down by the House Rules Committee.

By a 9-5 vote Wednesday, the committee refused to send the $10.5-billion legislation to the House floor and, in effect, killed its chance for passage during this session of Congress.

The bill would have provided funds for two years for a wide range of programs supervised by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, including most existing forms of public housing.

In addition, it would have provided $400 million to subsidize operations of city transit systems which now receive federal aid only for capital expenditures.

The Rules Committee turned down the bill as cleared by the House Banking Committee. So the banking panel planned a meeting today to determine whether there should be an effort to salvage the bill's most palatable portions, an unlikely choice because of the rush to adjourn by Oct. 14.

The committee is more likely to seek passage of a stop-gap bill continuing present housing programs at the current spending levels.

Throughout the process of molding the legislation, one group after another found something in the bill to criticize.

Civil-rights advocates objected to a provision giving local government authorities the right to veto low-income housing planned by private builders but subsidized by the government.

Critics argued that the clause would have strengthened the hand of suburbanites determined to exclude the poor and minorities from their neighborhoods.

Conservatives fought a provision which would have authorized a new program of direct government loans to buyers of low-income housing.

The now-dead bill also contained provisions designed to protect home buyers from abuse by lawyers, title companies and others involved in real-estate settlements. But critics said those provisions had been changed so much that they actually would have been weaker than existing regulations.

deadly weapon in a rude, angry and threatening manner against Jack Easter of East Prairie was continued to Oct. 12 to allow Easter time to employ counsel.

Misdemeanor charges and fines included Willie Jordan Jr. of Cairo, Ill., careless and imprudent driving, $31; James Rodney Pemberton of Sikeston, driving while intoxicated, $116; L.D. Stidham of Bertrand, speeding, $51; and Kenneth Gordon Liggons of Sikeston, careless and imprudent driving, $26.

Trial date for Ivy Booker of Charleston, charged with disturbing the peace, was set for Oct. 19. She pleaded not guilty to the charge and was released on her own recognizance.

A warrant was ordered for Harry Lee Linley of East Prairie after he failed to appear and pay a $32.50 fine assessed Aug. 17 for improper registration.

Cases continued to Oct. 5 are Robert T. Yates of Charleston, improper registration; Charles Clark, selling intoxicating liquor without a license; and Edward Whitaker Bonta of East Prairie, driving while license revoked.

A charge of failure to exercise the highest degree of care against Jearl Dean Brown of East Prairie was continued to Oct. 12.

In civil cases, Morris and Sons Grocery received default judgment of $142.69 and costs in an account suit brought against Luther Wasson, and Melvin and Bessie Brock were given judgment for possession of premises and accrued rent of $250 and court costs from Clifton Griggs.

his absence, he'd be a prisoner of the state," he added.

Phelps promised to become a full-time lieutenant governor. He charged that present Lt. Gov. William Morris still practices law even though he is paid more than the state auditor, treasurer and secretary of state.

Morris receives $16,000 a year as his base pay. He receives the Governor's salary rate every time the governor leaves the state. That brings his annual salary up to $20,000, Phelps said.

Phelps said his opponent, Jack Schramm, intends to continue the part-time role of the office.

"There are many problems in Jefferson City requiring leadership," Phelps said. The governor can't always handle a problem, he added, so the lieutenant governor can help.

He promised to work for greater industrial development and a better business climate.

Phelps said the State Chamber of Commerce rated Phelps and Schramm on their voting records in the House of Representatives. The rating covers votes on the bills the chamber thought would provide a better business climate. The chamber said Phelps voted correctly 95 per cent of the time, Scramm only seven per cent.

Phelps termed Republican changes this year "very good."

"I think we're going to win it," he said. "Of course, our team has no steamfitter union support," he added.

Distribute Questionnaires For New Madrid Rating

NEW MADRID — Distribution of questionnaires for rating the community began Wednesday in the first step toward reactivation of a Community Betterment Program for the Chamber of Commerce.

The survey contains 42 questions, covering nearly every phase of the community, including business and residential areas, educational and recreational facilities and city government.

Opinion ratings will be marked either poor, satisfactory or excellent and may include additional comments. Prompt completion of forms, which are to be returned without a signature, is requested.

Information from the survey will be tabulated to indicate which areas need improvement to upgrade the city and make it more attractive to present and future residents, industry and, in general, make it a better place in which to live.

The Rev. Edward E. Wolfe is general chairman of the Community Betterment Program. Survey committee members are Geneva Hunt, Mrs. Glenn Dyke and R. T. Bartlett. Youth members include Cindi Phillips, Fred Copeland, John Higgerson, Phillip Ransburgh, Susan Sharp, Kim St. Mary, Saundra Trotter, Lemuel Hunt and Rejesta Johnson.

It's all fun and games in Penneys Toyland, opening September 28th

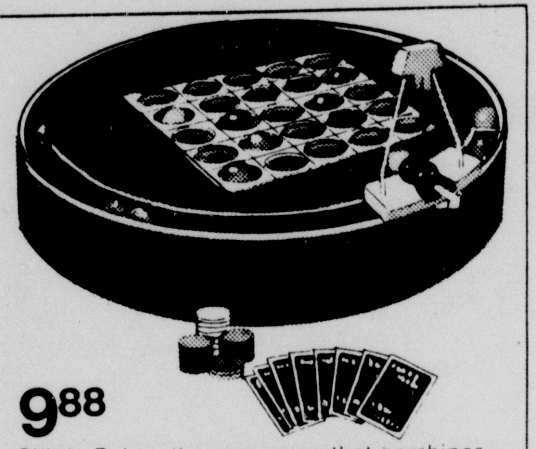
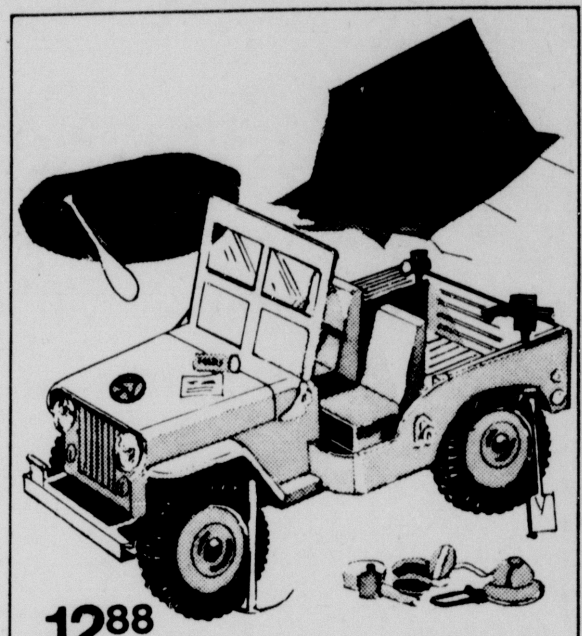
Howdy Doody ventriloquist doll—his mouth opens and closes when the string in back of his neck is manipulated. Movable vinyl head and mouth. 30" tall.



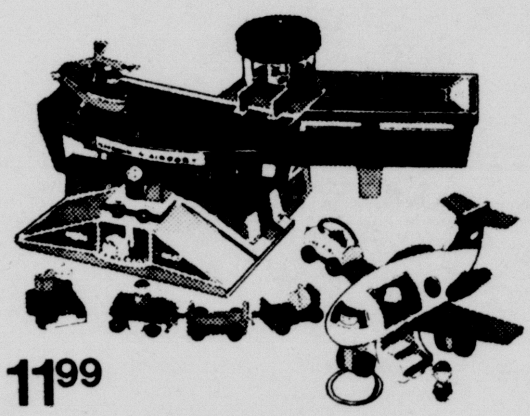
9.88

Skittle Poker, the new game that combines the skills of card playing and ball guidance. Swing the chained ball, and tap three balls into card holes to build a winning hand.



12.88

G.I. Joe® Desert Patrol™ Set a Penney exclusive. Action gear includes jeep, raft, pup tent, poncho, radio, map with case, flare gun, camera, binoculars, pith helmet, more. Figure not included.

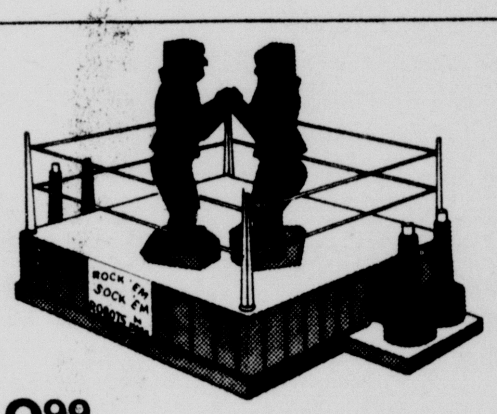


11.99

Play Family Airport has moving parts, makes realistic sounds. Swing-out loading ramp, jet plane, action helicopter, revolving baggage conveyer, more.

5.99

Cuddly, soft Talking Baby Beans® is 12" tall, all ready for lots of floppy, ploppy fun just like a bean bag. She stays put any old way she's set down.



9.99

Rock 'Em Sock 'Em Robots are in there swinging, worked by 2 opposing sets of push-button controls. Two 12½" plastic robots square off in the ring, fight wildly until one knocks the others' block off.

11.99

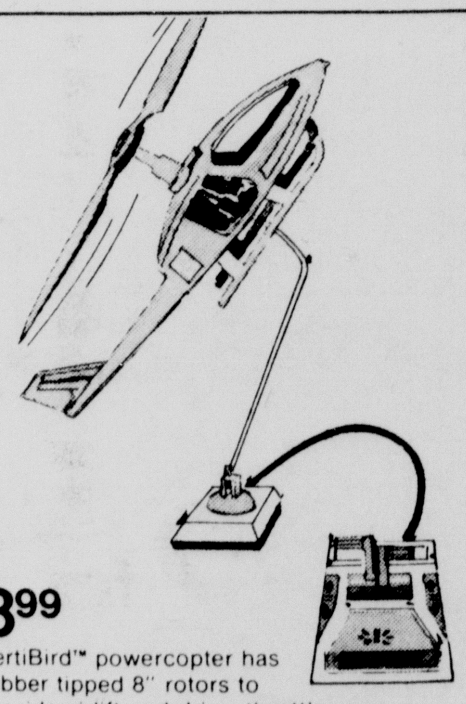
Tearful Baby Tender Love®. Turn her head, she looks sadder and sadder, cries real tears. Another turn and she changes to a happy smile. 15" tall.

6.44

Tiny Tears®. Lay her down and she begins to cry tears from her baby blue eyes. Pick her up and she stops crying. Dressed in her own Pamper®. 13½" tall.

11.99

Hi Dottie™ has a phone of her own and a big one for her play mother with a long 6' cord so she can call from another room! Just squeeze phone receiver. Hi Dottie talks, says 11 different things.



8.99

VertiBird™ powercopter has rubber tipped 8" rotors to provide airlift and drive, throttle for fast and slow. It can buzz high, dive low, hover, rescue the astronaut and whirl away. Batteries not included.
